THE UNION PACIFIC.

Plan for Floating the Big Debt.

How the Nineteen Millions of Indebtedness Will be Successfully Handled.

New York, Sept. 10.—The Evening Post says: Some misapprehension appears to have existed in financial circles as to the plan to be pursued for carrying the floating debt of the Union Pacific railway for the next three years. It has been stated, or at any rate supposed, that the syndicate, at the head of which is J. Pierpont Morgan, of Drexel, Morgan & Co., would advance the money necessary to take up the loans and hold the company's collateral therefor, which is now held by the company's creditors, and the nominal value of which is at least twice the amount of the loan. A prominent bank president, however, said to an Evening Post reporter that such was not the plan of the syndicate.

"The plan which is to be adopted," said he, "is for the various banks, trust companies and other corporations and individuals having loans of the Union Pacific to agree to accept the company's notes at three years at 92 cents on the dollar and bearing 6 per cent. interest, in payment of said loans, surrendering their collaterals, which are to be placed in escrow with the syndicate or trustees, more properly speaking, of whom Mr. Morgan will be the chief.

"It is those creditors, the holders of the loans, who are expected to sign an agreement to that effect, as I am informed. The syndicate is not to put up a dollar.

The loans aggregate about $19,000,000, but whether the holders of them have all agreed to sign the agreement I do not know. Of course, as such of the deposited collaterals appreciate the entire issue and reach a point at which they can be disposed of at advantage to the company, the syndicate is to sell them and take up the notes issued against them pro rata.

"The banks and trust companies having the loans may not like to tie up so much money for three years, but as the notes are to be issued at 92 and 6 per cent. interest they will pay about 7 1-2 per cent., which is not a bad investment. In all there is about $14,000,000 owing to the banks and trust companies in this city and Brooklyn. One trust company holds $1,000,000, another $700,000. Drexel, Morgan & Co. will get nothing for their trouble except glory. The Union Pacific company will put some clerks in their office to assist in the clerical work, but neither Mr. Morgan nor his firm will get a dollar out of the business."

This explanation of the plan of carrying the floating debt of the Union Pacific was confirmed at the company's office and also by Russell Sage, one of the directors, and by Sidney Dillon, the president of the company. It was further learned that the holders of three-fourths of the $19,000,000 of loans had agreed to the plan, and also that the notes so called would really be in the shape of certificates or bonds with interest bearing coupons attached.

TERROR STRICKEN.

San Salvador Shaken by an Earthquake.

Millions of Property and Many Lives Destroyed.

Whole Cities Wiped From the Face of the Earth.

Panic Has Seized the Entire Population.

Men, Women and Children Fleeing in Their Night Clothes to the Open Country and Praying to be Saved from Destruction.

New York, Sept. 10.—A special cable dispatch to the Herald from San Salvador says millions of dollars worth of property and many lives were destroyed in this republic by earthquake yesterday.

Whole towns were wiped out and hardly a city in the country, except those along the coast, escaped the awful effects of the convulsion.

There have been indications for several days past that a disturbance of more than usual power might be expected.

At just 5 minutes before 2 o'clock yesterday morning the earth began to shake.

The wave had a strong vertical and oscillatory movement. People rushed into the streets in their night clothing, and while the shock lasted only 20 seconds, before it had passed away there was a panic stricken mob making its way to the open country outside the city.

The scene was terrible.

Men, women and children were weeping, shrieking and praying in the streets; walls of houses cracked, tottered and fell; there was a deep, continuous mumbling as if of heavy thunder; the sky was overcast and the air was filled with a fine, penetrating dust.

While the shock lasted the earth rose and fell in long waves, and strong men were unable to keep their feet. The panic stricken people flocked to the open ground outside the city; temporary shelters were thrown up wherever possible, but nearly all the men and a great many women and children had only the sky for a cover.

All through the morning there have been slight shocks but none approaching the intensity of that which had been so destructive.

The inhabitants are afraid to return to their houses and are making themselves as comfortable as possible in their temporary camps. President Ezeta is doing everything he can to stop the panic and care for the homeless people until it is considered safe for them to go back to their homes.

The towns throughout the country have suffered more severely than the capital. Ana quito and Comasagua have been completely destroyed. Cojutepeque, San Tecla, San Pedro and Masahuet were so badly shaken that they are practically ruined, while the shock was plainly felt and damage done by it at Santa Ana and Susimtepeque, fully 60 miles from here.

It is impossible at this writing to form any idea as to the number of lives which have been lost. Two persons were killed here though there were many miraculous escapes from death. It is feared however, that there have been many people killed in the smaller towns. The loss of property will run into the millions.

TROUBLE IN THE MINES.

Bold Threats Made in Tennessee.

People Expect to See the Convicts Freed and Driven From the State.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 10.—Reliable information received here from Briceville and Coal creek shows an alarming condition of affairs there.

Whether it is a "bluff" for the legislature or in earnest remains to be seen. The information is to the effect that the miners have determined on turning loose the 125 convicts in the mines of the Knoxville Coal company.

During the late Briceville trouble these convicts were taken out of the stockade and sent to Knoxville the same day that the convicts and troops were captured at Briceville.

Since they were returned and put to work matters have been going along smoothly, but it seems that the free miners have now determined to play a desperate game.

The season is opening with a rush, and a large operator says that with no disturbance the mines could not fill their orders. There is now great uneasiness, and operators do not know what to do. Whether the miners will attack the convicts or not remains to be seen, but there is great uneasiness in the entire district, and a gentleman who is thoroughly posted on the situation says the public need not be surprised if every convict in the district is released within 24 hours.

The convicts in the Oliver Springs district will also be released.

The program this time is not to guard the convicts to Knoxville or any other place, and surrender to the authorities, but to turn them free in the mountains and run them out of the state of Kentucky.

Another alarming report is that the forty or fifty free miners whom the Tennessee Coal Mine company has been working during all the trouble over the convicts, have been notified that they must leave the mine. They are told that if they continue to work in the mine they will be killed. The situation is causing the operators much uneasiness.

ATE POISONOUS ROOTS.

Stoneham, Mass., Sept. 10.—While on a visit to a nephew here Miss Catherine Cook, aged 75, and Miss Jane C. Cook, aged 78, of Charleston, Mass., took a stroll in the woods yesterday. They came across a plant resembling an elderberry plant and both partook freely of the root and bark. They became very ill shortly after and died last evening. Another woman ate some of the root and became very ill but it is thought she will recover.

THE MICHIGAN POISONING.

A Sensational Case Made in the Courts.

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 10.—Ella Armstrong, who was arrested in Detroit and taken to Pontiac as an alleged accomplice with Mrs. Covert in the recent attempt to poison the Wade family at Holly, has turned state's evidence.

She says that Mrs. Covert got her to purchase the poison. Mrs. Covert uncorked the bottle and placed it in the pump.

The next time Wade went to the well to draw water the bottle dropped into his pail. He had it analyzed and found it contained strychnine.

There is a belief that Mrs. Covert poisoned her first husband. She wanted Wade to marry her. He refused, thereupon she wrote him a letter threatening to get even with him. When she was arraigned at the court she fainted and is now very sick.

A DEED OF TRUST.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 10.—M. J. O'Brien, a well-known citizen and supreme treasurer of the Catholic Knights of America, to-day filed a deed of trust on all his real and personal property to protect his creditors. His liabilities are not fully known, but will probably not exceed $50,000, which will include any deficit in his accounts as treasurer of the Catholic Knight. It is stated by his estimates that his property is sufficient to pay all indebtedness. His embarrassment is due to heavy losses on railroad construction contracts. O'Brien has tendered his resignation as treasurer.

The order is protected by a good bond for $50,000.

THE FOUR-AND-A-HALFS.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the treasury department yesterday for continuance at 2 per cent. amounted to $63,500, making the total to date $24,113,850.

The 4½ per cent. bonds received at the department for redemption to-day amount to $611,350, making the total thus far redeemed $10,225,100.

DIED A NATURAL DEATH.

Boston, Sept. 10.—The inquest held on the body of Charles W. Porter of Sudbury, whose mysterious death was reported yesterday showed that Porter died from natural causes and that one of his lungs was badly diseased. The discoloration on his neck is said to be due to blood settling there.

HOW TO GET WAR NEWS.

Traveling Telegraph Offices on the Field.

Successful Experiments Made by the French Army on the Frontier.

Paris, Sept. 10.—An interesting telegraphic experiment has been successfully made in connection with the manoeuvres of the French army on the eastern frontier, M. Willot, inspector of posts and telegraphs, recently presented to M. De Selves, director general of posts, a large wagon of his own invention.

The wagon is lightly but strongly constructed, and is fully equipped with the electrical and mechanical appliances of both the Morse and the Hughes systems of telegraphy.

M. De Selves ordered this traveling telegraph office to accompany the army in its march, and directed the telegraph employes along the route to contribute in every way possible to the success of the proposed experiment.

The wagon moved with the supply and ammunition trains immediately behind the rear guard of the army. By the employment of mounted military linemen, and the use of novel and ingenious mechanical devices in stringing wire from the nearest telegraph station to the perambulating field office, the rear guard of the marching troops was kept in constant touch with the outside world.

The correspondents of the Paris press and the foreign newspaper men, accompanying the army, speak enthusiastically of a service which made it possible for them to communicate with their papers direct from the scene of operations.

THE COTTON CROP.

September Report of the Department.

A Reduction in the Condition During the Past Month of Six Points.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The September crop report of the department of agriculture marks a reduction in the condition of cotton during the past month of six points, from 88.9 to 82.7. August is a critical period in the growth of the cotton plant, and 16 times in 20 years has deterioration been indicated by the returns of September 1. In the four exceptional years the August averages were relatively low and a decline has occurred during the previous month.

The cause of the present reduction, on the Atlantic coast, has been an excess of rainfall, causing overgrowth of the plant and diminishing the tendency to fruitage. From Alabama westward drought was the main factor of loss, assisted by the boll worm and caterpillar. Condition is lowest in Arkansas, Louisiana and Tennessee. In a few counties of Texas heavy rainfall in the morning, followed by hot sunshine in the afternoon, caused serious shedding of forms.

The most serious complaints are of shedding fruit and leaves, sprouting of seed in the bolls, rotting of bolls, rust, staining of open cotton, except in a few localities where cotton worms are unusually destructive. In the area affected by drought, rust and shedding also occur.

Sudden extremes of temperature, cool nights followed by hot days, have been productive of similar indications of deterioration. Any cause reducing vitality and threatening decay produces these frequently indicated diseases and conditions. The relative degree of loss from these causes is indicated by the state averages of condition, which are as follows:

Virginia, 78, a loss of 3 points; North Carolina, 79, a gain of 4 points; South Carolina, 81, a loss of 2 points; Georgia, 82, a loss of 4 points; Florida, 88, a loss of 6 points; Alabama, 83, a loss of 6 points; Mississippi, 83, a loss of 10 points; Louisiana, 85, a loss of 5 points; Texas, 82, a loss of 10 points; Arkansas, 86, a loss of 9 points; Tennessee, 84, a gain of 2 points.

GOT OFF LIGHTLY.

The Itata Case Has Been Compromised.

All the Coal Burned for Political Purposes Has Proved of No Avail.

Washington, Sept. 10.—It is learned that the abandonment of the case against the Itata is the result of an agreement between this government and the new Chilian government whereby the latter is to reimburse the United States for the expense incurred in the chase of the Itata. In return the congressionalist agents are freed from a further prosecution for a violation of the neutrality laws and the steamer is released.

BATTLE OF LAKE ERIE.

The Gallant Perry amd His Daring Deeds Recalled

By the Meeting of the Monumental Association.

An Interesting Gathering of Well Known People on Historic and Beautiful South Bass.

Put-in-Bay, Sept. 10.—(Special)—The Monumental association of the Maumee valley is to-day holding its meeting on one of the most historical spots in the northwest, the beautiful island of South Bass, more commonly known as Put-in-Bay.

Not only is the place historic, but the time as well, and no date more appropriate could have been selected. While the battlefield of Fallen Timbers, and the spots along the Maumee whereon were located the old forts, the more prominent of which might be mentioned—Ft. Industry, Meigs, Defiance and Wayne (the latter in Indiana at the confluence of the St. Mary's and St. Joe, which forms the Maumee), bear with them recollections of the early days when the frontier was bathed with the best blood of its defenders, no event of that period was more significant in a national way than the battle of Lake Erie.

The Maumee Valley Monumental association's meetings are always largely attended. The association was formed for the purpose of erecting monuments on each of the battlefields and fort sites in the valley.

The purpose of the association is directly to bring such influence to bear upon congress as will induce it to make the appropriations necessary to the consummation of such designs. So far its efforts have been partially successful.

The war department has by direction of congress caused the preliminary surveys to be made, and now all that is lacking is the money.

During the coming session of congress the matter will be pushed vigorously, with the view of early completion.

This is the first time that the association ever assembled at Put-in-Bay, and the meeting will be the most interesting in its history.

Put-in-Bay, now one of the most pleasant resorts in the whole country, was not always so, although it certainly must have always possessed the charms which make it a modern Elysian.

From its location and the beautiful land-locked bay it is and always has been the queen of the Lake Erie archipelago.

Doubtless Commodore Perry chose it as the scene of his operations for this reason. In the early part of the year 1813, Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry, one of the most gallant and intrepid of our early sea captains, was directed by the secretary of war to repair to Lake Erie and construct and equip a fleet with which he was directed to oppose the operations of the British fleet in these waters under command of Commodore Barclay, a naval officer of much experience, who had seen years of service with the foremost admiral of that age, the valorous Nelson.

Perry proceeded to Presque Isle, where he built and manned his fleet. After his preparations had been made he sailed toward the western end of the lake, where Barclay was supposed by him to be cruising.

He selected Put-in-Bay as the battleground, and anchoring his little fleet there in the safe and spacious harbor, awaited news from the enemy.

On the morning of September 10, 1813, just 78 years ago to-day, Commodore Perry, standing on the lookout on the north end of the little island of Gibraltar, sweeping the horizon with his glass, beheld in the offing between Rattlesnake and North Bass islands, the spars of a fleet of ships.

Suspecting it to be Barclay he immediately prepared the decks of his vessels for action.

As the fleet approached, his surmises proved to be right, and as soon as possible he got his fleet under way.

It consisted of the brig Lawrence, the Niagara and Caledonia, the Scorpia, Porcupine, Ariel, Somers, Tigris and Trippe, nine in all, with 54 guns and 490 men.

Of these the Lawrence was the flagship, commanded by Perry in person.

The other boats were on either side of him in the form of a semi-circle, the two ends almost touching the islands of Gibraltar and Middle Bass, while the flagship, occupying the center of the line, was farthest out in the bay and nearest the enemy.

In this line of battle Commodore Perry sailed out to meet the British and fight the first naval battle of any consequence in western waters.

Commodore Barclay had six ships, but they were superior to the American fleet. They were named the Detroit, Queen Charlotte, Lady Provost, the brigs Hunter and Chippewa, and the sloop Little Beet, carrying 63 guns and 520 officers and men.

As soon as the vessels were in gun shot the action begun and in a short time became hot.

By noon Commodore Perry was all but defeated. His flagship was literally shot to pieces and incapacitated for further use. Commodore Perry was then transferred, in the midst of a hot fire from the enemy, to the Niagara. In all the naval conquests on record there is no more brave incident than this mentioned. After he had taken possession of the Niagara he reformed his line and resolved to push the fighting.

Accordingly he broke the enemy's center, and doubling the fleet of Barclay up whipped the two halves in detail, imitating one of Napoleon Bonaparte's famous military movements.

By 2:30 o'clock the last of the British vessels had struck its colors, and Commodore Perry's victory was complete.

No British fleet existed on the great lakes, and a most decisive blow had been dealt the powerful enemy of the republic.

Snatching an old envelope he wrote upon its back his laconic and famous dispatch to Gen. Harrison: "We have met the enemy and they are ours. Two ships, one schooner, two brigs and a sloop."

This he sent to Gen. Harrison by courier after which he refilled and repaired his fleet at Put-in-Bay.

The conflict was one of the most memorable of any on record, and had much to do with the result of the war.

Several of the old cannon which were used by Perry in this battle are preserved here, and one of them stands on the bluff at Gibraltar, still mounted upon its carriage.

Many of the larger guns were taken to Cleveland several years ago. Upon the carriage of the one mounted and mentioned above, is painted the words: "Do not let me speak but friendly." Upon the other side: "The Reconstructor."

A tall cedar pole marks the spot on the rocky promontory where Perry first discovered the enemy's fleet.

The citizens of Put-in-Bay made splendid arrangements for the entertainment of guests and visitors were made welcome.

To-day was ushered in by the booming of cannon, the national salute being fired at sunrise.

The buildings in the place were all decorated with the national emblems and things possessed a Fourth of July appearance.

The few people who arrived last night contented themselves by relating tales of the early days and exchanging experiences.

The City of Toledo arrived at 10 o'clock having on board Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, the orator of the day, ex-Mayor Hamilton, S. M. Young, Judge Scott, Judge Cately, of Fulton county, Hon. Thomas Mawer, of Wood county, and a hundred other pioneers of the early days.

The Monumental association met in the park near the Beebe house, and Mr. Clay delivered his oration from the band stand.

The attendance, taking everything into consideration, was very large and the meeting very interesting.

THE SPINNERS.

The Sentiment of All Workmen is for a Strike.

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 10.—A largely attended meeting of the Spinners' association was held last night. The chief topic discussed was the proposed reduction of wages as announced by the manufacturers' association.

The sentiment of all members was in favor of striking. Another meeting will be held next Wednesday night when the members expect to have the exact figures regarding the amount of reduction to be made.

Delegates to the national convention, to be held in Lawrence the first Tuesday in October, were chosen at the meeting.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK.

Secretary Foster is off on a fishing cruise. He should easily beat the fisherman's luck he had with his two per cent. bait.—Philadelphia Record.

IT IS EPIDEMIC.

A Wave of Democratic Victory in the Air.

The People of Newport Turn Out the Whole List of Republican Office Holders.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 10.—The city election held here yesterday resulted in a democratic victory, being an almost complete overthrow. The democrats elected their mayor, a full board of six aldermen and eight out of fifteen councilmen, with one failure to elect. This majority gives them control of all city offices whose election is by city council.

The republicans last year had a mayor, five aldermen and nine councilmen or a joint majority of seven.

The question of reform in the price, quality and quantity of city water which is supplied by a private corporation made a prominent feature of the democratic canvass.

The majority of Col. Haney for mayor is 237.

WILL HOLD AN ELECTION.

Insurgents Respect the Voice of the People.

The New Chilian Government to be Put on a Solid Basis—A Guerrilla Captured.

New York, Sept. 10.—The Herald's Valparaiso dispatches say the Junta, at a meeting held yesterday, decided that an election would be the best method to bring about the tranquility so much desired and that October 18, next, was accordingly designated as election day.

Senators, deputies, municipal officers and presidential electors will be voted for. The new president will be installed on December 26.

Col. Stephan, who with 25 cavalrymen were supposed to have gone to the Argentine Republic to act as guerillas, has been captured and brought here. His cruelty and brutality to the anti Balmacedists who fell into his power, have aroused intense feeling against him. He will be very summarily dealt with.

IS PLUNGING ONCE MORE.

Pardridge Can't Keep Away From the Pit.

Reported to Have Made Sixty Thousand Dollars on the Break Yesterday.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Ed Pardridge is once more in the swim with the wheat market, and has lately been so confident that the price was about to break that he took unusual measures to provide himself with plenty of margins to follow up his luck if happily the course of the market should confirm his impression of the probable decline.

His wife is still abroad, but he was enabled by reason of the faith which other local capitalists have in his integrity to negotiate a loan of $200,000 on the security of a mortgage he gave upon some of his property, to which his signature alone is attached.

His wife's signature shall of course be added upon her return, unless in the meantime Mr. Pardridge makes enough money off the grain market to repay the loan. As Mr. Pardridge has been a persistent seller for two weeks back and has been constantly adding to his line as the market favored him, he must have cleaned up on the break a profit of $50,000 or $60,000.

FINANCIAL EXCITEMENT.

Berlin, Sept. 10.—A fall in German and Prussian consuls of 70 pfennigs, due to false rumors that the government intended to raise a new loan, has caused some excitement in financial circles.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Emile Doler, aged 38, connected with the silk firm of DeForrest & Co., of New York, committed suicide to-day owing to financial losses.

SHOT HIM DEAD.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Edwin Mitchell and Wm. Nelson, colored stable boys at the Sheepshead bay race track, quarreled this morning and Nelson shot Mitchell dead.

TO CLEAR OUT THE WHITES

The Tennessee Blacks Have Taken Up Arms.

Urged on by a Minister They Proceed to Start a War of Extermination.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 10.—The Rev. George F. Nightingale, pastor of one of the largest colored Baptist churches in the United States, has advised his people to arm themselves with Winchester rifles for the purpose of exterminating the whites.

A large number of his flock followed his advice, but others would not do so. A free fight among the factions was the result, in which the furniture in the church was smashed and a number of men injured. The police have arrested many of the ringleaders. The recent Georgetown (Ky.) lynching furnished the text for the Rev. Nightingale's attack on the whites.

A WAR IS EXPECTED.

Such is the Word From the Kaiser.

The Germans Polishing Up Their Firearms.

The Chilian Question is Still Causing Comment at the Capitals of European Countries.

London, Sept. 10.—A Munich dispatch says that the kaiser has conveyed very clearly in high Bavarian quarters his impression that war is to be expected, and that all Germany should be prepared. At the same time the kaiser appeared to have no apprehension as to the result. In addition to notifying the reserves, the German government has ordered a careful inspection of horses subject to call for use in the army, and this order is being carried out everywhere. In fact, says a Berlin correspondent, the whole empire seems on the watch waiting for the word to be given. A Berlin dispatch states that communications have passed between the German and Swedish cabinets relative to the attitude of Sweden in the event of a European war. The bait held out to attract the Swedes to the triple alliance is the prospect of recovering Finland. King Oscar is said to have declared that he would not enter into any formal arrangement, but that, as between Russia and Germany, his sympathies would be with the latter power. France has done everything possible to win Sweden over to the Franco-Russian side, but although King Oscar is personally attached to France as the land of his ancestors the feeling of the Swedish people against Russia is very bitter, and they are anxious to see its power crippled.

Surprise is expressed in Chilian circles here that the Chilian cruiser Presidente Pinto has not started across the Atlantic to surrender to the only government now existing in Chili. The hesitation of her commander has given rise to a rumor that Balmaceda may be in communication with his friends in Europe with a view of improving his cause, with the help of the Pinto and Errazuriz.

Under existing circumstances no European power is likely to permit arms to go aboard the Pinto except with the clear understanding the vessel is subject to the junta, as otherwise its standing would be little different from that of a pirate.

The flourishing manufacturing town of Eschwege, in Hesse-Nassau, is afflicted with a serious epidemic of typhoid fever and one of the woolen manufacturing establishments has been closed in consequence. The additions to the number attacked by the disease average about five daily. The greatest alarm prevails, and the central government is taking sanitary precautions.

CLEANING OUT THE CROOKS

Philadelphia Alive With Official Thieves.

No Wonder the People are Alarmed and Want Democratic Control.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—District Attorney Graham, after a consultation with Thomas W. Barlow, his assistant, and Joseph P. McCullen, counsel for City Treasurer Wright, with reference to the mercantile appraisers matter, concluded that sufficient evidence had been discovered to make out a prima face case against the appraisers.

He therefore requested Mr. Wright to make out an affidavit upon which to base warrants for their arrest, which he did, and Magistrate Pole thereupon issued warrants for the arrest of the five appraisers, Patton, Houseman, Hunter, Crawford and Bell.

The district attorney requested the magistrate to fix the bail at $2,500 each when they should be arrested, for a hearing on Monday morning at 11 o'clock.

AT FASSETT'S HOME.

Elmira, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The news of Collector Fassett's nomination for governor was received here with great enthusiasm. A salute of 100 guns was fired in his honor. Neighboring towns also received the news with great enthusiasm. Preparations are under way for a grand reception to Mr. Fassett when he returns here to-night.

COL. J. G. LEE DEAD.

New York, Sept. 10.—Col. John G. Lee, U. S. A., aged 54, died at the Hoffman house, of apoplexy. He is the officer sent to Corea four years ago to drill the Corean army.

MADE AN ASSIGNMENT.

A SQUADRON NO MORE.

The White Aggregation to be Broken Up.

The Yorktown and Petrel to Go to China—Others for the Pacific Coast.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The squadron of evolution or the white squadron, which has attracted so much attention throughout this country and Europe, is to be disbanded.

Yesterday afternoon Secretary Tracy issued orders to the chiefs of bureaus in the navy department directing them to make the necessary arrangements for preparing for sea service two vessels of the squadron—the Yorktown and the Petral.

The Petrel, one of the smaller vessels of the new navy, will go to China via the Mediterranean and Suez canal. Her small size makes her especially fitted for the Chinese station, enabling her to cruise in many of the rivers for a considerable distance inland.

The Yorktown, a gunboat, will be assigned to the Pacific, but her headquarters have not been definitely decided on. It is probable she will be stationed at San Francisco ready for any necessary service on the western coasts of this country, Central America and South America. The other vessels of Admiral Walker's command will probably be assigned to foreign stations.

IS DAN IN THE JOB?

Serious Charges Against the Secretary of State.

Believed to Have Connived With Publishers,

In Order to Inflict an Outrageous Robbery on the People of the State of Ohio.

Cincinnati, Sept. 10.—The details of a most peculiar transaction through the medium of the Australian ballot law, have been slowly filtering to the surface for the past couple of weeks.

These indications go to show that there has been a deliberate attempt upon the part of some one to take advantage of certain sections in the law to fleece the community through the various boards of elections that have been erected under the recent act passed by the legislature.

From all over the state a general protest has gone up that there has been unfair dealing, and the indications now are that the matter will be thrown into the courts for adjudication.

Secretary of State Ryan also appears in the affair in a manner surprising to all who have any knowledge of what is going on.

An attempt is being made to foist upon the election boards an official tally-sheet and poll-book, which is said to be copyrighted and for which a patent has been asked. It bears the official stamp of Secretary of State Ryan and all election boards have been instructed that it is the only one that can be used at the forthcoming election. Herein is the meanness of the thing, as the history of the book will show.

Last May the members of the leading boards of the state met at Columbus for conference as to the new balloting law. At this meeting it was proposed by W. J. O'Neil, of this city, that the various boards represented exchange the forms of tally-sheets, poll-books and other stationery used by them. For the past five years there has been in use a poll-book and tally-sheet in combination form that has given the utmost satisfaction. There was no patent upon it, and various stationers and bookbinders have from time to time furnished them to the board, according as they were high or low in their bids, for it was the rule of the board to award it to the man who would furnish them the cheapest. This book, or a copy of it, was sent to Cleveland, Toledo, Dayton and other cities of the state, and at once met with much favor.

That self-same book is now copyrighted and a patent has been applied for by Short & Forman, of Cleveland, who are declared by the secretary to possess not only the only form that can be used, but that boards of election must buy of them alone and at their own price.

This knowledge did not come to the board of election of this city until quite recently, and then through a mistake in a newspaper paragraph, which caused the schemers, through a high official, to disclose their hands.

The board of elections of the city of Cleveland had it impressed upon them in a more forcible manner, for while they were discussing the matter of advertising for stationery, as the law provides, an agent of Short & Forman appeared and blandly asked how many books they thought they would need for the coming election, informing them at the same time that they could not purchase of any one else but his firm.

This was an astounding discovery to the members of the board, for the law distinctly stated that all supplies must be advertised for, and that the contract for the same be awarded to the lowest bidder.

The mistake that caused the knowledge of the sly trick to come to the ears of the board of elections in this city was the publishing through mistake of an announcement that the board had awarded a contract for supplying of poll-books, when the announcement should have read registration books. Judge of the surprise of Benj. F. Ehrmann, president of the board, when the following letter, printed upon the official paper of the department of state, was handed him:

Columbus, Ohio, August 7, 1891.

Ben F. Ehrmann, President of the Board of Elections, Cincinnati, Ohio: I observed in the daily press of yesterday a statement that you have let the contract for the poll-books and tally-sheets for your county for the forthcoming election. As the law porvides that it is the duty of the secretary of state to prescribe all forms of blanks, and as I have already indicated in a former letter that such form is being prepared for use in your county, I would be pleased to know if the statement is correct that you expect to prepare forms and adopt the same, regardless of the statutes. If you have the right and intend to ignore this provision of the low, why not ignore all that relating to booths, ballots and the entire system of voting thereunder? I desire to know what are the facts in the case, in order that I may take some steps looking toward a settlement of the matter as to whether the provisions prescribed by law will be followed or not.

Very respectfully yours,
DANIEL J. RYAN,
"Secretary of State."

Taken by Surprise.

To say that the board was taken by surprise when this letter was laid before them is drawing it mildly, for it could not account for the way in which it was drawn and the threatening style in which it was written. Investigation of the former letter that Mr. Ryan stated was sent to them developed the fact that it was as follows:

B. F. Ehrmann, President of the Board of Elections, Cincinnati, Ohio.—Dear Sir: Your favor of the 8th inst., in reference to poll-books, has been received. I have notified the parties that are preparing the forms to hurry the matter as fast as possible, and as soon as they are received I will forward them to your address.

Very respectfully,
DANIEL J. RYAN, Secretary.

This was a good leader toward the cat in the meal-tub, and a few quiet remarks were indulged in. But everything was kept dark in order to await developments.

It then appeared that Mr. Ehrmann never favored Mr. Ryan with any communication with regard to poll-books, and the significant second paragraph "the parties now preparing the forms," set the members of the board to thinking with the effect of arousing their suspicion to the highest point. The interest shown in the matter was something they could not understand. Next

Came Another Letter

From the secretary of state. It read as follows:

"Columbus, Ohio.

"To B. F. Ehrmann, President of Board of Elections, Cincinnati, Ohio: As provided by law, the secretary of state adopted a form of poll-books and tally-sheets, and that form is the 'Common Sense Poll-book and Tally-sheet' prepared by Short & Forman, of Cleveland, Ohio. Section 6 of the ballot law expressly omits the poll-books and tally-sheets from being awarded to the lowest bidder. The only authorized form, then, can be procured from the Cleveland firm. Very respectfully yours,

"DANIEL J. RYAN,
"Secretary of State."

Last week along came the sample of the "Common Sense Poll-book and Tally-sheet," with the official indorsement of the secretary spread all over the back leaf. The board was in session when the sample was presented by Secretary Crow, and the moment Mr. Charles B. Russell caught sight of it he blurted out:

"What is this; another one of those d—d steals?"

It should be explained that the board had been pestered to death with sample poll-books, all of which had been corked after the book in use in this city. Mr. Russell did not know at the time that in the room was the agent for the owners of the copyright or whatever they have on the form. Perhaps, if he did, he would not have cared. Upon opening the book it was found to be a literal steal of the book last printed by the board, the bunglers going so far as to print a mistake that appeared in the instructions. In another place the reader of the instructions is directed to Form 23, relating to certain of the forms used by the board here and nowhere else.

Even this was copied whole and entire, although it did not make the slightest sense. Inside the arrangements of the book were identical with that of the local book, the patentees (?) going so far as to use forms and directions that had been drawn up by the very men to whom it is now proposed to sell the book. This was a staggerer to the members of the board, who could not believe their own eyes when they looked upon it.

But the heaviest blow was to come. The polite agent left a price list, in which the firm of Short & Forman agreed to deliver a set of poll-books to boards of election for the reasonable sum of $5 each, one set being required for each precinct. This took away the little breath that the members of the board had left, for they had been supplying the same books for their own use at the unusually high price of 77 cents per set. The Cleveland firm, therefore, wanted an advance of $4.23 for the privilege of calling the book "The Common Sense" and having it registered at Washington.

Some days later a telegram reached the board, stating that the firm would supply the books at $5 per set. It appeared that there had been a general kick along the line, and the owners (?) had weakened. But the board here received a warning that has caused them to study ever since.

It was no more or less than a letter from the zealous secretary of state enclosing a copy of the copyright of the forms that Short & Forman claim as their property. It is printed upon department paper, and it is reasonable to suppose that department stamps were placed upon the envelopes, which are official.

Despite all of this apparently well concocted scheme to force the Cleveland book upon the state at the enormous advance at which it is quoted, there are indications that the scheme wil fail. The members of the board hold that the secretary has exceeded his powers in designating any patented article contrary to a special statute upon that point. Outside of that it is asserted that his duty, and law seems clear, is merely to prepare a form for the guidance of boards of election, and that they shall themselves let the contracts for the supply needed. His action in the present case gives the Cleveland firm one of the most complete monopolies that has ever been heard of.

It is a notorious fact that a copy of the Cincinnati poll-book, as well as other forms, were sent to Secretary Ryan, so that this disposes of the loophole that he might have been imposed upon. The interpretation put upon the unsolicited letter, to the effect that the parties to whom the task of preparing the form had been committed were dilatory, is that the secretary allowed Short & Forman to do what he was commanded by law to carry out.

One of the most peculiar facts in the whole peculiar case is the strange omission from section 6, which relates to he printing of the ballots, of poll-books and tally-sheets. There are other intricate forms that must be prepared, and why these poll-books were excepted from the rest of the stationery is unaccountable.

It will be seen that Mr. Ryan states that the section in question omits merely the order to give to the lowest bidder the contract for poll-books. The board of elections hold that there is nothing in that section that will prevent them from asking for competitive bidding, despite arbitrary order of the secretary. They can make the award where they please.

The leading stationers and printers of the state have taken up the matter and are giving it a thorough ventilation. Circulars are being sent to the various boards of election offering the same outfit for $1 per set and guaranteeing the purchaser against any evil consequences that may be threatened. The scheme is roundly denounced, and one firm, Troup & Co., of Dayton, declares that the secretary failed in his duty when he recommended a form that was taken from the forms now in use in every county in the state. It is asserted that he prepared no form, but merely recommended that which the Cleveland firm owns.

THE SCHEME MAY WORK.

Cleveland Refuses to Follow Dan Ryan's Orders,

And the Kangaroo Law May Find Its Way Into the Courts Before Election.

Cleveland, Sept. 10.—The Cleveland board of elections will disregard Secretary of State Ryan's orders to purchase the poll books and tally sheets manufactured by Short & Forman, of this city, and adopted by Ryan as the form to be used throughout the state.

They will purchase books and sheets wherever they can get them cheapest, and have already advertised for bids from printers. The books and sheets will, of course, be of the style adopted by Ryan.

George Short stated this morning that he had received word from the secretary that their books and sheets would be used in every county. Gen. Meyer, director of law for Cleveland, when informed of this, said that the Cleveland board would go ahead with the work of soliciting bids for the work.

His decision that Short & Forman could not copyright their form is taken as law by the board, and the members propose to stick to it. There will be a pretty fight.

Short & Forman have announced that they will reduce the price of their form from $5 to $3.50.

PREPARING FOR BATTLE.

A Fall of Many Interesting Campaigns.

Political Warriors Ready for a Fight Which Will Last Into the Next Year.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Political warriors are burnishing up their armor preparatory to a long and desperate campaign. Not only will they be called upon to do duty in the coming fall elections, but they will have to remain at their posts all through the winter and spring to be in readiness for the natinal nominations and election

Political prophets who value their reputations are a little chary about making predicions at this time. Enthusiastic republicans declare they will recapture much of the territory they lost at the last congressional election, while over-sanguine democrats claim they will have a walk-over in such states as Ohio, Peunsylvania and Iowa.

The more prudent politician understands that there are almost as many opportunities for errors in a game of politics as there are chances for misplay in a game of base ball.

During the past week several distinguished democrats have passed through Washington en route to various fields of political labor, and while they are encouraged by the observation they have made in different localities, they do not hesitate to say that success will not come to the democratic party unless there is a thorough and well organi zed army put into the field against the republican forces.

Within the city a few days ago Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, remarked that it might be a difficult matter to get out the full party vote in various states this fall, because while the crops are so abundant and prosperity seems to smile upon the farmer, he does not devote much time to the practical part of politics.

He is too busy with his business affairs to attend to his political duties, and therefore it behooves every party man to come to the front and do his share of the work that is before them. He proposes to make speeches in several states during the fall campaign wherever he thinks he can do the most good for his party.

NEW YORK REPUBLICANS.

Fassett to Lead the State Ticket This Fall.

A Platform Long as the Moral Law.

Harrison Captures an Indorsement—The Silver and Other Questions Touched.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The New York republicans named their ticket yesterday afternoon, as follows, all by acclammation:

Governor—J. Sloat Fassett.
Lieutenant-governor—John Vrooman.
Secretary of State—Eugene F. O'Connor.
State Treasurer—Ira M. Hedges.
Comptroller—A. C. Wade.
Surveyor—Verplanck Colvin.
Attorney General—W. E. Werner.

No candidate but Fassett appeared before the conventon and after adjournment he was the center of an enthusiastic crowd of admirers.

The Platform.

The platform is as follows:

The republicans of the state of New York, by their chosen representatives, declare:

1. They adhere to the principles on which the national victory was won in 1888, by the decisive electoral votes of this state, and they approve the legislation of the Fifty-first congress in the embodiment of those principles.

2. They commend the wisdom, patriotism and purity of the administration of President Harrison, who has brought himself near to the hearts of the people by his ability and fidelity in the enforcement of the laws and the performance of his duties, and also by the admirable presentation of American principles which he has made in his addresses to the people.

3. The administration commands the confidence and respect of the American people by its intelligent, efficient and sagacious conduct of the public business in all the departments; especially by the ability and energy displayed by a distinguished citizen of this state in building a navy to become adequate to the national defense; by the thorough and successful management of the vast transactions of the treasury under the present secretary and his lamented predecessor; and by the brilliant and conservative treatment of our foreign relations by the secretary of state, which has raised the American name to the highest position ever attained among the nations of the globe.

4. The revenue legislation of the Fifty-first congress, both in the tariff and the administrative act, is a just and proper application of the policy of protection to American labor and the control of home markets for the industry of our own people; and the fruits of this legislation are increasing daily in the establishment of new factories, in steadier employment to wage earners, in better prices to the farmer for the products of the soil, and in the assurance of financial independence for our country in the face of monetary distress throughout Europe and South America.

5. By well adjusted treaties of reciprocity the administration is opening the markets of the western world to our surplus farm products and manufactures, by admitting free of duty such articles as we do not and can not produce in adequate quantity, and securing in exchange the exemption from duty of such articles as it is profitable for our farms and factories to export. The joint operation of such reciprocity and of the protective system, with the restoration of the American flag to the ocean carrying trade, promises to develop our foreign commerce on a healthful basis, advantageous to all our industries.

6. The act of July 14, 1890, provides for the purchase of the silver product of American mines and issuing of new treasury notes protected by a reserve of 100 cents worth of silver for every dollar issued. We commend this policy of maintaining gold and silver at parity, the treasury notes for silver to be kept at par with gold. The voice of New York is emphatic against any degradation of the currency, and demands with President Harrison "every dollar issued by the government, whether paper or coin, shall be as good as every other dollar."

7. The republican party, not forgetting the critical days when the needs of the republic counted neither blood nor treasure, while mindful of the dictates of economy and avoiding reaction invited by excess of appropriations, favors the fulfillment of the pledges given to the soldiers of the union that the nation which they saved would not fail in just treatment of surviving veterans and the widows and orphans of those who sacrificed their lives that the union might live.

8. That we approve the speedy construction of the Nicaragua canal, under American charter, by American enterprise, and with American capital, as essential to national defense, and to the interests of interstate commerce and the trade of the continent.

9. We recognize the dignity of labor and the necessity of proper legislation to protect its interests. We deprecate any atempt to lessen the fruits of toil, or to place honest workmen in connection with paupers and convicts, domestic or foreign. The rigid enforcement of the alien labor contract law is commended. We indorse the laws enacted by the late republican congress to protect our people against the influx of the vicious, pauper and criminal classes of foreign nations, and we emphatically approve the rigid enforcement of these laws. We indorse the provisions of the act known as the Fassett law and we condemn the evasion of that act by the present administration.

10. We reassert the expressed determination of the republican party to maintain the rights of franchise to its fullest extent, and to give to all citizens the amplest protection to which they are entitled under the constitution.

11. We favor such legislation as will prevent all illegal combinations and unjust exactions by aggregated capital and corporate powers. We insist upon the suppression of all trusts, combines and schemes designed artificially to increase the price of the necessaries of life.

12. The cruelties and persecutions practiced upon the Jews in Russia are abhorent to the sense of justice of this people; and the intervention of our government by all proper means to secure to the oppressed of all foreign nations equal rights under their laws, is commended.

13. We affirm the republican party's favor to thorough genuine reform in the civil service, and commend the national administration for giving effect thereto under existing law. And the flagrant and persistent abuses in the state civil service by the democratic administration, are held up to condemnation.

14. Appeal is taken to the people of the state to redeem its government from discredit brought upon it by democratic mal-administration, the result of personal despotism in the executive office, which has tolerated and fostered corruption and debauchery of the state departments, prostituted the canals, state prisons and public institutions, and all avenues to legislation, to the ambition of an audacious and selfish executive. Thanks are given to faithful republican legislators who have combatted these conditions, and so far as was in their power, rendered them inoperative.

15. We favor comprehensive and efficient excise legislation for giving local option by counties, towns and cities, and restriction by taxation in such localities as do not by option exclude the liquor traffic.

16. That there is this year no state tax for "general purposes," and a consequent reduction of the tax levy which fixes the lowest rate of state tax in 36 years, is the result of wise and farseeing republican legislation, under which already direct taxation has been lessened more than $20,000,000, directly benefiting real estate and personal property, and at the same time establishing the state and municipal credit at the highest level. This work of equalizing and relieving the burden of taxation should be continued to completion on the same lines.

17. The refusal of the democratic assembly to allow investigation of the state canals, and the large expenditures annually made thereon, was confession of the jobbery and dishonesty in the democracy's perversion of the public property to base partisan uses. The effort of the republican members of the late legislature to enforce economy on the public works, thwarted by democratic opposition, s heartly commended.

18. The denal by a democrate speaker of the legislature of the right of petition in the instance of the memorial of clergymen of all denominations and many other citizens, was a flagrant and inexcusable violation of the rights of the people, and has our reprobation.

19. We favor the amendment of the ballot law by the substitution of the unofficial "paster" ballot for the "blanket" official ballot, upon which the names of candidates shall be completely grouped, rendering the voter's duty easy, treating candidates with equal justice, lessening opportunities for fraud, bribery and corruption, and largely reducing the expenses of elections.

20. We approve the principle that the government of cities is primarily a matter of business administration, and the enactment of laws to secure for all cities of the state genuine home rule, the enactment of a law to reqire a general and uniform system of municipal accounting, and the adoption of an amendment to the constitution requiring the passage of a general bill for the government of cities.

21. The passage of the direct tax refunding bill by a republican congress and its approval by the republican president, returned to this state $2,213,000, which would have been distributed to the several counties as their just due, but for democratic oppression in the legislature.

22. We denounce the unpatriotic effort of Gov. Hill, through the last democratis assembly, to place this state in an unfriendly attitude toward the world's Columbia exposition, to be held in Chicago in 1893; that we recognize the necessity for an exhibition by the state in keeping with its commercial and industrial supremacy in the nation; and that we favor an early action by the next legislature providing for a proper exhibit from this state.

23. It is a fundamental principle of republican policy to reduce taxation and to retrench the expenditures of public money whenever it can be done, therefore, in the promotion of this policy, the next legslature is requested to adopt an amendment to secton 13, of article 6 of the constitution of this state, expunging therefrom the provison made for the payment of the salary of any judicial officer after the expiration of his term of office.

The following resolution by Col. Elliott F. Shepard, of New York, was by unanimous vote of the committee, recommended and presented before the convention, where it was carried.

Resolved, That the republican party of the state recognize the supremacy in shipping and commercial matters of the beautiful metroplis of the nation, at the mouth of the Hudson, and will encourage the American spirit that is determined to carry that supremacy still higher and to build American ships, manned by American seamen, both for carrying all American trade and as far as possible that between other countries.

LIEUT. PEARY'S PLIGHT.

A Relief Expedition to be Sent After Him.

The Geographical Societies Trying to Dodge Responsibility for the Undertaking.

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—An erroneous impression has been caused by late dispatches from Philadelphia relating to the Arctic expedition under Lieut. Robert E. Peary, which started for the north last June to explore northern Greenland and return from that frozen country some time next summer or early in the fall. Several members of the west Greenland expedition, who traveled with Lieut. Peary's party a portion of their journey, have returned and make the statement that unless a relief expedition is sent out to rescue the explorer and his friends very soon, Lieut. Peary and Mrs. Peary, who accompanied her husband, with five assistants of the sterner sex, the same fate will befall the travelers as has visited more than one similar expedition toward the north pole.

The Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, according to the dispatches, was not the prime mover in the Peary expedition, and will not back a relief party simply as an organization.

The American Geographical society, of which Mr. Gardner C. Hubbard, of Washington, is president, it has also been stated, in reality fathered the expedition, and the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences would not furnish funds toward a relief party on that account.

This impression is erroneous, it seems, and members of the American Geographical society here place the responsibility upon the scientific organization of the Quaker City.

The only encouragement, it is said, which the Geographical society gave the expedition was to conduct a lecture on the subject under its auspices in the Washington Academy of Music just prior to Lieut. Peary's start for the north.

So far from backing the expedition as a body, the society, it is claimed, furnished no funds toward its support except what individual members contributed, and under these circumstances the organization feels itself under no positive obligation to originate the relief party, although support to the scheme will be forthcoming unofficially if the plan takes definite shape on the part of the Philadelphia society.

Prof. Edward Clarke, who is an active member of the Geographical society, said yesterday that while the organization had not taken any action on the subject since it was not called upon to do so, there was no doubt that the proposed relief party would not be organized here. The society, he said, had nothing to do with Lieut. Peary's movements beyond the lecture mentioned. Prof. Clarke was certain the Philadelphia academy of natural sciences had been the prime mover.

Lieut. Peary and wife are well known in Washington, Mrs. Peary's home before her marriage, and where her mother and sister, Mrs. and Miss Diebitsch, reside, although both are now out of the city. Mrs. Peary married the lieutenant three years ago, their acquaintance dating back to when the explorer was stationed at the navy yard here. She is the daughter of a German nobleman, who gave up his title on coming to live in America, and is making the Arctic trip with her husband because she preferred to do so rather than remain at home.

The fact that there is a woman in the expedition said to be in danger, and that woman a Washington lady, has aroused considerable sympathy locally, and several members of the geographical society contemplate starting a relief movement as a personal affair, in case the supporting society at Palladelphia does not take the matter in hand very shortly.

CONVICT LABOR QUESTION

The Way Mississippi Will Deal With It.

The Penitentiary to be a Thing of the Past.

A State Farm to be Bought and the Prisoners to be Taught in the Line of Agriculture.

New York, Sept. 10.—"While the south is receiving such universal condemnation for using the convict lease system," said James S. Martin, a large cotton planter, of Jackson, Miss., at the Fifth Avenue hotel, "I wish you would say that Mississippi is now swinging out of line on the convict business.

"We farmers more than any other class have appreciated the evils of the present convict system because we have to hire the negroes after they come out of the camps from serving their terms. If a negro is fairly good tempered and willing to do his work when he is sent to the camps for probably the result of a drunken brawl, he soon has all that knocked out of him.

"He leaves the camps soured against everybody and is ready for any kind of villainy. It takes years of the best treatment to make him realize that all white men are not against him.

"Last year when the new constitution was passed it was made compulsory on the state to abolish the convict lease system before 1894 or sooner, if the state could take care of the convicts financially. Things went from bad to worse, and while the farmers, who composed the legislature last year, were trying to think of some way they could stop the whole business, then came that trouble in Brickeville. That settled it and our people have now determined to start the convicts in farming."

"How do the farmers of the state like that?"

"Why of course we do not object—seeing' they were farmers who passed the law and are now pushing it on to have it followed. Advertisements have been inserted in all the papers, asking for land, in not less than 3,000 acres in one body, that would be suitable for the purpose.

"Numberless answers have already been received from different parts of the state, offering good land; but at present the choice seems to rest on 5,000 acres of land in Rankin county, which is offered at a little over $6 per acre. The land is splendidly situated, lying on a railroad and being well watered and timbered. The plantation house can be used by the overseer and his men, while good houses can be put up for the convicts.

"One great thing will be done by this farming—and that is that the whole thing will be public. It will be sought to make the farm a model one as well as have it pay expenses.

"You see the great trouble with us is that we have not been able to spend any money on our state prisons, and the way we shall get the money for the purchase of the farm is by selling the state prison. The state prison, or penitentiary, as you call it here, is right in the heart of Jackson, and occupies over four blocks.

"The residents of Jackson have always complained about the prison, and we are extremely glad that it is at last to be torn down. The land on which the prison stands is very valuable, and will probably bring enough over the price of the plantation to pay for the erection of the buildings. The most careful consideration will be given to the construction of the convict building in the way of cleanliness and ventilation.

"Each convict will have a single iron bedstead, like those in use in hospitals, furnished with proper bed clothing. The men will be compelled to care for their own beds, as soldiers in camp do, and the utmost cleanliness will be insisted on. The whole thing will be tried to see if the convicts cannot be taught to live better."

"What crops will be grown?"

"The chief crop will doubtless be cotton, as it is to-day, but I think in time the farm will come to be the experimental farm of the state. Every kind of fruit, vegetable and grain will be tested to see what improvements can be made, either in methods of planting, cultivation or harvesting. The different home-fertilizers will be used, and the way in using farming implements will be changed. The plantation will certainly pay, as the overseer will have all the labor he needs. We think that the farm will settle the convict question, and not only improve the morals of the imprisoned men but really be a benefit to the farmers of the state."

THE FAST OCEAN MAIL.

London, Sept. 10.—It appears that the postoffice officials succeeded in making a muddle of the distribution and delivery of the mails which arrived yesterday by the steamer City of New York. Only the mail matter from Ireland was landed at Queenstown, the remainder being taken on to Liverpool. There the mail for the north was distributed, while the remainder, consisting of 204 sacks, was forwarded to London by special train.

The train arrived here at 11:50 a. m., while the first batch of the mail was not delivered at the postoffice until 1 o'clock and the bulk of it not until later. The postoffice department seems to have made no special effort to expedite the delivery of this mail, in the transportation of which the Canadian Pacific, the American railways and the Inman company made such phenomenal speed.

WANT THEIR SILVER.

London, Sept. 10.—Counsel on behalf of the Chilian junta has applied to the High Court for an order restraining the owners and officers of the steamer Moselle from parting possession with the Chilian silver with which she is expected to arrive at Southampton this week, except by depositing the same in the bank of England.

The junta also applies for an order restraining the Plate bank, which made advances against the silver in question, from endorsing bills relating thereto. The judge allowed notice to be served for next Wednesday. In the meantime temporary restraining orders were granted.

MILITARY EXCITEMENT.

London, Sept. 10.—The Times' correspondent at Madrid telegraphs that a profound sensation has been created in that city by the probable truth of a rumor that the reserves are to be called out and a new army corps formed and forthwith mobilized. This, added to the fact that the republican agitation in Coruana, has become so grave in character that the mob now defies the civic guard, causes even the most optimistic to be apprehensive for the future.

FOR THE TOILET

There is no more useful or elegant article than Ayer's Hair Vigor—the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia O. Pitts-Moody, writes: "I Ask For Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair."

THE BIG FAIR DAY.

Thousands Viewing the Sights on the Grounds.

Another Good Time Expected To-Morrow.

Some of the More Important Exhibits—The Races Yesterday—Notes Here and There.

If Secretary Crane had the selection of such weather as must necessarily draw out large crowds he could not have hit on a more delightful specimen of a glorious autumn day than this. Just cool enough to be pleasant and warm enough to be comfortable, it is just such a day as one would select for an outing.

This naturally is the great day of the fair, and our country cousins are with us in exceedingly large numbers The attendance is the largest of the week, and since in early hour people have been pouring into the grounds. The street car facilities are not perhaps all they ought to be or all they would be if there were any competition, but considering the fact as a rule one-horse bob-tails constitute the Dorr street line the Consolidated manages to hustle out quite a few. From 7:30 this morning every car was packed, and a large number availed themselves of the sidewalks to tramp it out. This mode of getting there does not beat the street car to any great extent.

Now that the departments are all full, or as full as they will be, it strikes me that the exhibits this year, while perhaps superior in quality, is more limited in quantity than former years.

In the live stock the exhibits are good as a rule, and competition in many classes very keen. It will be Saturday before all the awards are in and probably next week before the books are closed.

Races This Afternoon.

To-day's races promise to be the event of the week. As will be seen from the entries herewith given some good animals have been entered for the 2:22 and 2:40 classes this afternoon. Of the races generally up to-day it may be said what the young man remarked of his sweetheart's cakes:

"It is very good—what there is of it."

Then realizing the fact that he had made a blunder he blurted out:

"And there is enough of it, such as it is."

The races to-day, however, will be above the average. The entries for to-day are:

2:29 CLASS TROT.

Biddie Donovan, Ketcham farm.
Magnoma, Shelly & Bro., Holgate, O.
Steven R, R. Carnell, Saginaw, Mich.
Nightingale, Pickett & Yarrick, Toledo.

2:40 CLASS TROT.

Miss Morehouse, Wm Morehouse, Toledo.
Jennie B, Shelly & Bro., Holgate, O.

RUNNERS.

Rodger Eastman, A. L. Van Norman, E. Saginaw.
Oscar Lynde, L. H. Brockway, East Saginaw.
Baritone, Ben Kniffen, Stryker, O.

The Woolson's Display.

One of the most notable displays in the main building is that of the Woolson Spice company, who always lead the procession in showing to the world the products of their great mills. Lion coffees and spices are so well known and liked that to keep house without them would be a difficult thing to do.

In their show at exposition grounds the Woolson Spice company have not made any great efforts at display, but aim to give the people an idea of the purity of their goods by showing them the process of crushing and pulverizing their celebrated mustards and spices. The machinery and mustard pounders are in charge of Mr. J. S. Meeker, who is demonstrating to the people that they put out only their own make of goods. Their display is very attractive, and is drawing its share of attention from the great crowds in attendance, all of whom they superintendent is very kind to take care of in his pleasantest manner, furnishing them with the company's beautiful cards, which the public are so eager to get.

Awards Made.

Thh following awards were made this morning in the horse department, class 8, matched teams:

Yesterday's Races.

The visitors at the exposition yesterday who watched the races, enjoyed some excellent sport. There were several hotly contested heats and no little interest was kept up. The favorites were the winners, however, and so the bookmakers came out considerably ahead to make up for their losses of the day before.

The weather was excellent and the track in splendid condition.

The first event was a 2:17 pace in which were entered Ivorine, Rally Wilkes, Emma and Lucy B. This race was the most interesting from the fact that Emma was owned and driven by the famous horseman, John Splan, and George H. Ketcham was also driving his own horse, Lucy B. Some excellent driving was done by Mr Ketcham and he received much applause.

Emma won the first heat easily but the second was a hotly contested one between Rally Wilkes and Lucy B, the former winning by a nose. The performance of Ivorine in this race was most erratic, she being off her feet most of the time, except in the third heat when she kept down in splendid shape and had no trouble in coming in second.

The score:

Ivorine	4	4	2	4
Rally Wilkes	2	1	4	3
Emma	1	3	1	1
Lucy B	3	2	3	2

Time, 2:23, 2:25, 2:20, 2:25.

The next event was a 2-year-old, trot in which the only entries were Quickstep, owned by George H. Ketcham, and Nyanza, owned by Ryan & Hack, of Adrian, Mich. It was not much of a race, and Quickstep had no trouble in winning but the performance of this horse was wonderful. This was only Quickstep's second race and was won in the fast time of 2:36½.

The score:

Quickstep	1	1
Nyanza	2	2

Time, 2:46½, 2:36½.

The third event was a mile dash between Australind, Baratone and Rodger Eastman. The horses came in closely bunched with Baratone first and Rodger Eastman and Australind following in the order named. Time, 1:52½.

The running exhibitions by Van Norman and his horses were also very interesting and consisted of a running race between a running team hitched to a skeleton wagon, against a single horse, and the team ridden standing by Van Norman, against the other horse. The latter race was won by the team in 52 seconds.

The program for to-morrow's races is as follows:

Free for all trotting	$500
Three-year old class, trotting, mile heats, 2 in 3 added	100
Three-year old class, pacing, mile heats, 2 in 3 added	100
Running, one-half mile heats, 2 in 3 added	100

Victors "Make the Pace."

The display of bicycles made by the Chapman Hardware Company in the west wing of Main continues to attract a generous share of attention from the crowds that surge through the aisles. The display is elegantly and tastefully arranged and is in keeping with the business sagacity and energy of the firm represented. In addition to the goods shown at the exposition, they carry a full line of builders' and cabinet hardware at their Adams street store.

THE FINEST AND BEST BUSINESS COLLEGE EXHIBIT

is being made by the Tri-State Business College and "Beat" Shorthand School in their large and well filled rooms in Old Library building, nearly opposite postoffice, corner Madison and Summit streets. The management of the Tri-State consulted the best interests of its many students and remained in the school room instead of making a display at the exposition this year. There is such a demand for help from this institution that it is necessary to spend every moment possible preparing students for positions offered.

This institution does not believe in boy teachers. C. M. Robinson, principal of the commercial department, has been recognized as one of our leading business educators for 18 years. J. W. Melchior, principal of shorthand department, has taught shorthand in Toledo eight years, and it is well known that he has no equal in this vicinity; he devotes his entire time to teaching and placing students in positions. C. H. Melchior, who has charge of the English department, has for 18 years been one of the most successful teachers in his line. In this department he is ably assisted by E. M. Demuth, a teacher of 15 years experience. Well qualified assistants in all departments. Visit the Tri-State and see a live, progressing college.

Fine Musical Instruments.

Modern ideas are prevailing among manufacturers of pianos, and as a result we have the elegant new styles of cases that are produced at the factories of such concerns as Conover Bros., Vose and Son, Kranich & Bach and Stultz & Bauer. These popular pianos are sold in this city by J. W. Greene & Co., who are making their display this year in their elegant new sales rooms in Pythian castle. They have extended cordial invitations to exposition visitors and all others to call and look through their three large stores, all on the ground floor.

The Wilcox & White, Packard, and the well-known Estey organ are sold by this firm, they being exclusive agents in this territory. They are showing them in a large variety of cases, both in light wood and dark finish.

The Standard sewing machine was introduced to the people of Toledo by Messrs. Greene & Co., a few years ago, and is still being sold by them. The Standard makes a Kensington stitch so much like hand work that it is almost impossible to discover any difference.

It also very successfully imitates the finest Roman and Persian embroidery. It is certainly a most wonderful machine. Visitors at the exposition will miss the find exhibit of this firm in Main hall, as they found it would be impossible to get out this year. A great many will doubtless accept their invitation to visit them in Pythian castle.

Crackers and Confectionery.

The very first section to the right of the aquarium entrance to Main Hall is the magnificent display of Taylor and Lazenby the enterprising jobbers of fancy cakes, crackers, and confectionery. The many colored packages of goods, used in this firm's business, give the opportunity that was successfully embraced, to make a very charming exhibit. The members of this firm are both young men, full of enterprise, and notwithstanding they have been in this business less than a year, they have a very well established wholesale trade in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. Both men are well known in the trade, Mr. Taylor as a salesman for the past 10 years and Mr. Lazenby as a practical baker of several years' experience. They carry a full line of fancy baked goods put up in the handsomest and most convenient manner known to the trade. They also carry a complete stock of candies and fine confections, embracing almost everything that is wanted by the retail trade. They deal too, in imported and domestic cigars, and have been made city agents for Record Breakers, Ben Hur and other brands of Geo. Moeb's cigars. They gave away stacks of chewing gum and beautiful souvenir cards every day since the exposition opened.

To-day they are distributing free, several boxes of the celebrated Seymour Butter crackers, made by the New York Biscuit company. A large box of these goods would only last a few minutes after being opened.

The Bee Takes a Prize.

Miss Maud Noteman of the Bee was awarded first prize in the amatuer art department for a painting of a game piece. The honor was well bestowed as competent artists indorsed the decision of the lady judges, who, by the way, are each of them artists of repute. The bestowal of the prize is all the more complimentary for the reason that it is the first time Miss Noteman has ever entered the list. The piece is a really fine work of art, excellent in conception and admirably executed.

A Magnificent Display.

The Lion Dry Goods Co. is one of the oldest and best known firms in the city, and has, since the organization of the tri-state fair, been prominent exhibitors. The Bee takes pleasure in reporting this worthy firm. The outlook for the Lion Dry Goods Co. is exceedingly flattering, the sales running $100,000 ahead so far for 1891. The exhibit at the fair, consisting of fine mequette carpets, new fur, Symrna rugs, rich brocatelle and lace curtains, a superb oriental display, costly curtains, etc., will convey to the reader an idea of the immense varieties of stock carried by the company at their store, where 150 clerks are employed, who courteously wait upon the throng of daily customers. Mr. Lewis Gerwin, who arranged the exhibit at the fair, is congratulated upon his success as an artist in that direction. Mr. Geo. Fisher, their president, is a man of fine business ability and push, which means a growing and brilliant business for "The Lion" Dry Goods company. Visitors at the exposition are cordially invited to make the Lion store headquarters during their stay in the city.

Sterling & Co.'s Display.

This reliable firm's exhibit is simply perfect in detail and effect. The ladies particularly admire the rich carpets and magnificent variety of rugs, curtains, etc. The gentlemen of this enterprising firm make it a point to sell the best class of goods at remarkably reasonable prices. Give them a call at their store, 408 and 410 Summit street.

Sterling & Co. invite the public to call at their booth.

Buggies and Carriages.

John Bladon & Son are not making a display at the exposition this year, but they invite all visitors to call at their salesroom on Ontario street, opposite the new Pythian castle, and inspect their fine stock, which is complete in all lines. They have some new work on hand, the like of which has never been seen in this city before, and visitors will be amply repaid for the time spent in looking at it, whether they want to buy or not.

Fine Carriage Display.

John Bladon & Son, the well known carriage manufacturers are making their display this year at their factory and sales-room on Ontario street, opposite the new Pythian castle, where they have a superb line of new work, comprising stylish, easy-riding surrys, handsome carriages and substantial end-spring buggies with and without tops. They make a light family surrey, which is undoubtedly the most desirable family carriage put up in this city.

Fine Portraits.

Mr. Wilcox, who received a diploma last year at the fair for having the best life-size crayon portrait, will share the honors this year. Mr. Wilcox has a fine collection of portraits exhibited this year, which are highly meritorious. The public are invited to call on him at his studio at the corner of Madison and Thirteenth, to get reasonable prices for good work.

The Big Tea Pot.

Near the center of the main hall is the monster tea pot of the Daulit Glass and Crockery company, who are making an extensive display in their store at 236 Summit street, where they wish all exposition visitors to call.

The Whitney & Currier Co.

This company certainly excells all other exhibitors in the Music hall. Their booth is so large and so beautifully arranged that it catches the eye and holds the attention of the enormous crowds that throng through the main entrance, while the sweet tones of the Boardman & Gray and Sohmer & Schubert pianos fill the building and delight the ear.

Ostrich Plumes.

In the west end of main is the georgeous display of J. A. Harvis, of the Parisian dye house at 607 Adams street. Mr. Harvis has recently equipped his dye works with the latest improved machinery for doing a general dying business, in addition to his already well established ostrich feather dying trade.

C. J. Woolley & Co.

The unique Japanese booth of this enterprising firm was the most conspicuous feature of the south wing of the main building. This exquisite display was arranged under the direction of Mrs. Woolley, who received numerous compliments for its beauty. Elegantly finished Chickering, Kroeger, Kurtzman and Stuyvesant pianos were shown to the best advantage by Mr. Stackhouse, who succeeded in keeping crowds around him all day. They exhibited medals awarded to the Chickering company, being the only cross of the Legion of Honor of the Paris exposition awarded to an American manufacturer.

Notes.

Isn't this lovely weather?

The fakir is abroad in the land.

30,000 people were on the grounds to-day.

The floral displays this year excell all previous years.

Miss Nellie Dunning's china decorating is greatly admired.

Miss Mamie Noteman is assisting at the Gibbony glass booth.

Leon's band is furnishing some excellent music on the grounds.

The public enjoy Mr. Scammel's music at Whitney & Currier's.

A cider press in full operation is one of the interesting exhibits.

Sergeant Scott had charge of the police on the grounds yesterday.

The tuberous begonias at Foster's flower booth are worth noticing.

The prizes offered by Mr. Cawood for the bicycle races are fine.

Mr. Wm. H. Morehouse viewed the races from the judge's stand yesterday.

The fakirs complain that suckers are not biting fast enough to suit them.

The absence of Mrs. Suder's floral display this year at the fair is noticed.

A special race of local interest is being arranged for to-morrow afternoon.

The whistling fiend is on deck and he is blowing his bugle for all there is in it.

An amateur display of flowers by Miss Kingfield and Miss Flessia is very good.

Mr. Wilcox, the portrait artist, has a collection of 63 portraits at the fair this week.

Billy Moorehouse was on deck early and his horses were the finest looking on exhibit.

The fish exhibit continues to be one of the centers of attraction. That bass of Judge Lorenz' is pointed out as a 6-months old.

The calvacade of horse exhibits this afternoon was the subject of much favorable comment.

Maryanne and Aleck came in from Tontogany this morning and are right in the swim.

Jack McGettigan's team of buckskin roadsters had the finest action of any team on the track.

The competition in class 9 roadsters, was keen. It was still in progress when this dispatch was sent.

Try the "Mammoth" dining hall at fair grounds. Everything neat and clean, with good service to all.

For saddle horse ridden by owner, Dr. Wm. McBain was given first prize and Mrs. Dr. Newton second.

John Berney, secretary of the police board, exhibits one of the handsomest roadsters on the grounds.

The telephone company has closed the Bee 'phone to all but Bee people for which (sub rosa) the gods be thanked.

Prominent among the machinery exhibits are the wind mills, and a dozen of them rear their tall heads above the crowd.

Mr. Hassanzahl has been engaged in the crockery business for 27 years and is well known among the business fraternity.

Brackett's dining hall business is assuming great proportions at the fair grounds. Dine there once and you will want to go again.

There were but four entries in the light roadsters' class, and in the half mile trial Billy Moorehouse's team ran away from the rest.

No. 4, the big bell dining hall conducted by Mr. Titus, is doing a rushing business. Give No. 4 a call and your hunger will be satisfied.

The ladies of the Disciple's church, at their Exposition eating house, are kept very busy serving their friends with dinner and lunch.

The ladies of the Fifth Presbyterian church are doing famously at their lunch stand. They sell lunches over the counter and serve fine dinners.

The Bee is under obligations to Secretary Crane's courteous and efficient assistants, Miss Myrtle Cowderick, Miss Zella Funk and Mr. Earnest Jaqua.

To-morrow the grand stand will be free in order to give the people of Toledo an opportunity to see the great race. Charlie Friel will be the attraction.

Prof. Van Norman beat any of his previous records yesterday, and he will give an exhibition this afternoon which promises to be better than any yet given.

Among the amusing things on the grounds is a wheel of fortune which the proprietor claims is for the benefit of "the church," though he does not say which church.

He's on hand—"Pick 'em out, pick 'em out, only 10 cents." If some one would only pick him out and dump him in the pond this would be a much pleasanter place to stay.

The ladies of the Third Presbyterian church entertained immense crowds today at their octagon pavilion near vegetable palace, and the multitudes went away satisfied.

Much interest was taken in the driving of John Splan, the famous horseman, yesterday. Splan is well known in Toledo and many years ago he trotted Rarus on this track in 2:16.

The poultry department should be visited. The tariff on eggs dont seem to worry our hens a little bit, and the rooster is just as "sassy" as if Bill McKinley never tried to handicap him.

Several new features lend a charm to the fair this year. The druggists' display, Nicholas & Buchanan's stationery—books, etc.; Hassenzhail's fine display of china and several other additions have been made.

George H. Ketcham received much praise for his driving yesterday and he showed himself to be an excellent horseman. He is cool and steady on the track and knows how to take advantage of every point.

Geo. H. Ketcham is being congratulated on carrying off so many prizes yesterday. It may be remarked incidentally that Geo. H. has been more, perhaps, than any other one man instrumental in making the fair the success that it has been.

While there is naturally considerable expense and work in making a display, yet it pays. Take Hassanzahl for instance a dozen times a scribe heard the remark, why! I didn't know that they had such fine goods, and reasonable too. It pays to advertise.

In passing through the main building at the exposition grounds one cannot help but notice the large number of red tickets displayed on the exhibit of flowers and plants made by J. G. Gartner & Co., the Cherry street florists. It is a very creditable display and is receiving favorable mention from all visitors at the great show, all of which looks well for Gartner & Co., who have worked themselves to the front rank as growers and dealers in plants and flowers.

Yes, we used the Buckeye paint for years and have always found it pure and of lasting qualities. This, and similar remarks, are made by many who are interested in paints and varnishes, as they look at the display of the Buckeye Paint and Varnish Mills, in the main building at Exposition grounds. The merits of these goods are becoming better known every year and are much sought after by painters and dealers generally.

The Worts, Kirk & Bigelow branch of the United States Baking company's display in main building, at exposition grounds, is one of the most attractive and interesting places at the fair. And why should it not be? for the thousands who are eating their strictly pure candies and the delicious baked goods of every description that are made by this old and reliable house can testify that Toledo's branch of the United States Baking company cannot be outdone in putting on the market the most palatable and healthful foods in their line of business—confectionery and fine baked goods. Visitors at the fair should notice their beautiful display near center of Main building, and try a sample of their popular Reception Flakes.

NOT A SPIRITUALIST.

One of the Points in a Will Case Broken Down.

New York, Sept. 10.—The dispatch from San Francisco asserting that Mrs. Hopkins-Searles was a spiritualist, and that Edward F. Searles was enabled to wed her because of his influence over her as a spiritualistic medium, was shown to Mr. C. P. Huntington yesterday.

"That is nonsense," said he. "I knew Mrs. Hopkins-Searles very well. I first met her in the fall of 1853, just after her mariage to Mark Hopkins. She always knew just what she wanted, and I do not believe she was ever influenced in the slightest degree by any spiritualistic manifestations."

Mr. Huntington reiterated his assertion that the Searles-Hopkins will contest would not affect the management of the Southern Pacific railway.

WILL TELL ALL TO-DAY.

Sensational Story Expected From Anderson.

Believed That He Will Implicate L. M. Hadden in the Plot to Liberate Him.

Cincinnati, Sept. 10.—The jail matter threatened a climax yesterday. It was the time rumor had set for Anderson to talk.

Prosecutor Schwartz and Sheriff Heim had a conference in the morning, at which an understanding was reached that the former should hear the burglar's story from own lips.

It was decided to walk Anderson over to the prosecutor's office in the court house and have his statement taken down in shorthand.

The hour set for the revelation to begin was 2 p. m. Promptly Sheriff Heim and Deputy Scheibel escorted the burglar from the jail to the office of the prosecutor.

Frank Cook, the official stenographer, was present. The doors of the private office had been locked, and everything was in readiness for the burglar to begin.

Anderson, however, instead of starting with his story, announced that under the advice of his attorneys he would decline to say anything unless Lawyer Shay was present.

Mr. Shay's office was called up by telephone, and it was learned that he was over at the races. Nothing remained but to take Anderson back to jail. There was something of an understanding, however, that the prosecutor might have a conference with the burglar and his attorney this morning, when Anderson might tell the story.

The Commercial-Gazette says that Lew M. Hadden will be implicated in the plot by Anderson's confession.

CAN'T MOVE THE WHEAT

The Crop Too Heavy for the Railroads.

Not Enough Locomotives in the Land to Haul the Grain Across the Country.

Kansas City, Sept. 10.—Ever since the wheat harvest in Kansas was begun receipts of wheat at this place have been enormous.

Many of the farmers with big crops were anxious to market their wheat at the earliest possible moment and secure ready money to pay their debts.

Up to within the past week the railroads have been able to handle the crop with moderate promptness, but since then the receipts have been so heavy that a blockade of serious dimensions now exists.

Yesterday morning there were at the Missouri Pacific yards 500 cars of loaded wheat waiting to be forwarded; in the Santa Fe yard 400 cars; in the Union Pacific yard 250, and in the yards of all the other roads about 800 cars all told. Reports from various points in Kansas state that loaded cars of wheat are waiting on the switches for transportation. The railroads are doing everything to break the blorkade. All spare engines have been brought into the service of moving the wheat, and it is expected that in a few days all the receipts of loaded wheat will be forwarded with reasonable dispatch.

DENIES THE STATEMENT.

Cashier Maple Contradicts a Report.

He Still Firmly Believes That Roberts is the Man Who Robbed His Bank.

Columbus Grove, O., Sept. 10—There is the greatest indignation here over dispatches published from St. Marys to the effect that Cashier Maple had changed his mind as to the guilt of Roberts, now in the Putnam county jail under the charge of murdering Vandermark and robbing the bank here.

Mr. Maple requests a positive denial of the fraudulent information given from St. Marys. Not only this gentleman, but every man who saw the criminal on the day the crime was committed, numbering about twenty in all, are ready to testify positively that Roberts is the criminal, and the only public sentiment and belief here is that the criminal is in our jail and will be punished according to law.

BLAINE'S CONDITION.

His Spirits Seem to Grow Lighter Each Day.

Bar Harbor, Sept. 10.—Mr. Blaine spent the greater part of to-day in outdoor exercise. A party, including the younger members of Mr. Blaine's family, went up McFarlands mountain on a picnic. Mr. Blaine himself drove out early in the afternoon and joined them. After reaching the mountain, which lies close to the further side of Eagle lake, he walked about for an hour and seemed in rare good spirits.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Blaine joined the party and Mr. and Mrs. Blaine drove off together from McFarlands mountain to Cromwells harbor about the shore and home again at dark.

Mr. Blane's spirits seem to grow lighter every day.

BULLY ACQUITTED

On a Charge of Interfering With the Mails.

The Case Before Commissioner Hall Proves Very Sensational and to the Discredit of the Prosecuting Witness.

The hearing of J. B. Bully for opening mail addressed to the New Era Manufacturing company took place before United States Commissioner Hall in the district attorney's office yesterday and to-day. The trial resulted in the discharge of Mr Bully, and the testimony introduced showed the prosecuting witness in a very bad light.

Yesterday B. F. Callender, proprietor of the New Era manufacturing company, formerly of this city, now of New York, testified that he had personally sent several decoy letters from Detroit which had been received and opened by Bully. He knew this, that the letters thus sent had been answered. In one letter 50 cents had been enclosed for crayons. This letter was sent in the name of Clarence Beck Detroit, but so far no answer had been received. Witness detailed at length how he had traced the letters to the postoffice at Auburndale. How he visited Bully's house and saw there a sealed letter addressed to Beck in Bully's handwriting. He produced a circular of Bully's setting forth the fact that the New Era Crayon Oil company, of which Bully was proprietor, had been established in 1876. His company, the New Era Manufacturing company, had been established in that year.

R. T. Deacon, manager of the Detroit Times, testified to the fact that on September 3 he had sent a letter at Callender's request to the New Era Manufacturing company, Toledo, but had as yet received no answer.

The hearing was continued this morning, and Attorney L. W. Morris, counsel for Mr. Bully, cross-examined Mr. Callender. He repeated the testimony of yesterday, but when Mr. Morris began to pry into his personal affairs during his residence in Toledo, the witness refused to answer. He refused to tell what name he was doing business for four years under the name of the New Era Manufacturing company, and in 1887 he moved to Batavia, N. Y., where he is now making crayons under the name of the Franklin Oil Crayon Co.

Mr. Morris attempted to show that the present Mrs. Bully was Callender's wife while he was here, and that he went under the name of C. L. Grey at that time, but he refused to answer any questions on this point.

He admitted that the lady had worked for him and had closed up his business.

Dr. A. B. Mason, postmaster at Auburndale, testified that Mr. Bully rented box 326 in his office and received mail for the New Era Oil Crayon company. He did not remember letters for the New Era Manufacturing company.

Mr. Bully testified that he first met Mr. Callender in 1883, when he lived on Bancroft street, and was known by the name of C. L. Gray. He with a lady who was known as his wife, were manufacturing crayons under the name of the New Era Manufacturing company. Grey was on the road most of the time, and his wife manufactured the goods, filled orders, received letters and did most of the business. In 1887 Grey and his wife separated, and she went to Columbus and he, Mr. Bully, afterwards married her. Last February she commenced the manufacture of crayons, under the name of the New Era Oil Crayon company, and Mr. Bully acted as agent and was on the road most of the time selling goods.

He stated that they had received no letters for the New Era Manufacturing company except the decoy letters, and those had been opened by his wife and one of them answered by himself, thinking they were for him as there was no New Era manufacturing company. He also testified that they were raising a 10-year-old boy, of whom Callender was the father, but he now had the name of Bully. Last week, after the decoy letters had been received, Callender appeared at Mr. Bully's house and remonstrated with Mrs. Bully for making crayons and threatened them with trouble if they did not stop the business. Later Mr. Bully found him in a bed room ransacking through their letters and ordered him out of the house. Mr. Bully states that then Callender threatened him with a revolver, and after Callender was gone some of his letters were missing; Callender also demanded of Mrs. Bully all the letters he had written to her.

Mrs. Bully testified that she was married to prosecuting witness in Detroit on the 23d of November, 1879. He was then known as C. L. Grey, and she did not find out that his name was Callender until 1887. They lived in Detroit about four years, after which Callender came to Toledo and bought a saloon on Cherry street. She came the next week and induced him to give up the saloon business, and they then went into the business of manufacturing crayons under the name of the New Era Manufacturing Co., she doing all the business and making of goods while he was on the road, and when he was at home she did half.

This they did until 1887 when she found Grey out and separated, he leaving her with their child. This boy, she said, was christened Burton Harris Gray, in Grace church here, by Rector Hopkins. On October 15, 1887, she married Mr. Bully in Fremont, and last spring she commenced manufacturing crayons. She said that she had received no letters for the new Era Manufacturing company except the decoy letters that had been shown, and these she had opened without looking at the addresses.

The evidence also showed that Callender returned to Batavia to live with his first wife and children after he had left Toledo.

This concluded the evidence and after a brief argument by Mr. Morris, the defendant was discharged by Commissioner Hall.

THE BLACK SEA FLEET.

Russia is Rapidly Gaining Her Point.

Eleven Shipments of War Stores Have Passed Up the Dardanelles This Year.

London, Sept. 10.—The Standard publishes a Batoum dispatch which says: "Eleven shipments of our war stores have traversed the Dardanelles this year. All volunteer cruisers have taken heavy guns for fortifying Vladivostock. Several foreign vessels have been chartered to carry stores and munitions.

"Turkey's yielding to Russia shows that the treaty of Paris is a dead letter so far as Russia is concerned, as a strong Black sea fleet is being rapidly collected. The diplomatic triumph of the Russian ambassador at Constantinople shows plainly how Russia is paving the way to achieve her long cherished ambition—the possession of Constantinople."

INJURED BY SPECULATION.

London, Sept. 10.—A dispatch to the News fom Odessa says:

"The extraordinary fluctuations in roubles in the past ten days have almost brought international commerce to a standstill. Business contracts are impossible. There is little doubt that the Berlin bankers are exercising a sinister influence on Russian exchange and it is felt that the autumn will bring a serious crisis."

A GRAND FIZZLE.

The McKinley Steubenville Blowout Fell Flat.

Republican Managers at a Loss to Account for the Absence of Enthusiasm.

Steubenville, Sept. 10.—The McKinley demonstration to-day was the most notable political failure ever known here, though herculean efforts were made for a big meeting.

Less than one thousand visitors are here. There is very little display of bunting and no enthusiasm whatever.

Of the free lunch provided for twenty-five hundred, more than half was left over. Republican managers are dumbfounded at the lack of enthusiasm.

Believed by Her Friends in Chicago to Have Been Abducted.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Miss Ava, an English woman supposed to be worth over a million dollars who has for some time been carrying on a crusade against the "slums" of Chicago, is missing, and it is believed by her friends that she has been abducted.

Recently she has received anonymous letters threatening her life. Yesterday afternoon Miss Ava entered the Jesuit church to see a priest, since which time she has not been seen.

The priest says she talked with him about fifteen minutes and then left the church, but a lady who accompanied her to the door says she did not see her come out of the building.

The Itata will be given up. The state department lets itself down as easily as possible, but it comes down. What a fall is this for jingoism.

Minister Egan announces that he is in "cordial communication with the Chilian junta." The cordiality on the part of the junta is probably of the kind old-fashioned rules of courtesy provides for, the kind that "speeds the parting guest."

Mr. C. A. Maxwell, of Xenia, was Foster's candidate for minister to Hayti. Mr. John S. Dunham, of Philadelphia (credited to Kentucky), was Postmaster-General Wanamaker's candidate. The postmaster-general's man got the office, and the Ohio man got left.

Yesterday's New York World sized it up this way: "Under this administration a collector of the port is a public officer who collects delegates for a Platt convention." To-day the World can say that under this administration the public officer is richly rewarded for his partisan work.

Lord Salisbury says Russia possesses no rights as to the passage of the Dardanelles or the Bosphorus which are not possessed by the other European powers. Does this mean that an English fleet will be sent through the straits which gave passage to the Russian war ship and its "reserve troops"?

The political campaign in Pennsylvania is correctly defined when it is said that this is not so much a democratic canvass against a republican canvass, but a life and death struggle between common honesty and unblushing, unrestricted fraud. The democracy with its platform of honest government in the interests of all the people should win.

The Hungarian government will hereafter refuse to deliver prospectuses and other documents sent out by emigration agencies. It believes its people are deceived by the agents of American corporations who lure them to this country on false representations of plenty of work at high wages, and that its people are better off at home. Hence it will endeavor to restrain emigration. For which much thanks.

When Secretary Blaine, his "health permitting," comes to Ohio to make those speeches the Commercial-Gazette joyously announces "will be worth thousands of votes for McKinley," will leave behind him that hat he crushed in his indignant remonstrance against the enactment of the McKinley bill? The question is as idle as the rumor of his coming. Mr. Blaine is the last man in the world to defend a lost cause.

In his address opening the Trades Union congress at Newcastle, Mr. Thomas Burt, M. P., president of the congress, took strong ground against the present teachings of English reformers who look for relief through state aid and governmental interference with and regulation of industrial conditions. He expressed the belief that if the state should usurp the functions of producing wealth and employing labor, general disaster would result. His admonition to the representatives of labor assembled in the congress was in substance that self-help is the best solution for existing social problems. A sound conclusion.

Venezuela is the little country so far behind the times as to see nothing in Blaine's reciprocity offer, but it is a country making some giant strides toward a higher civilization, as witness some of its recent legislation. One measure is the adoption of a bill of rights prohibiting the enlistment of soldiers by force. Another new law prohibits the imprisonment of any person for more than five days without a trial, and forbids the confinement of any person before trial with common criminals. There are jurisdictions within the United States that might with credit enact and enforce the same law. Sill another advance in Venezuela is a law which forbids punishment on account of religious or political opinion held by a citizen.

NEW YORK POLITICS.

There are twenty-three planks in the republican platform adopted by the New Yorkers yesterday, but all of them are not sufficient to cover up the vile character of that worst type of politics which run the convention and nominated J. Sloat Fassett for governor. A few weeks ago the chances of electing a republican governor this fall in New York were so slim that Platt and the rest of the bosses thought of catering to the respectable element that has fallen away in disgust, by nominating President Andrew D. White of Cornell university. It was better to sacrifice a good man than one of the gang, and had President White been nominated he would have been traded by the party leaders.

Within the last few weeks the bitter and increasing dissension of the democratic brethren have encouraged New York republicans to hope that by giving their machine full headway they could ride into office between the democratic factions. Then was it discovered that Mr. White was not the man; that his advocacy of a property qualification for voters and other theories that have no place in practical politics disqualified him for the candidacy. Things always known, but conveniently forgotten until it served the party bosses to remember them.

Fassett was the man for the place when a chance for success was seen, and Fassett is the man nominated. His record is sufficiently well known to guarantee the character of the canvass that will follow. Success for the ticket depends entirely upon the disunion of the democrats, and those who count upon it should be disappointed. In New York as in Ohio the state election has an important bearing upon next year's presidential campaign, and the democrats of the Empire state owe it to themselves, to the cause of democracy and to the welfare of the country to get together and work for the common good; to do such work as they are fully capable of doing, and to allow no man's ambition and no faction in the party to keep them from showing that united front which will keep the state in line and disappoint and defeat such men as Fassett and Platt, behind whom are the administration cohorts at Washington.

In fighting this battle the democracy will not be alone. With them will be the mugwump element, to which no nomination could have been more offensive than that of Mr. Fassett. With them, too, more or less openly, will be the vast number of disaffected republicans of ex-Collector Erhardt's stamp. There is more than one republican knife whetting to-day in New York state to be used on Boss Platt's ticket.

While the alarming reports from Tennessee indicate that the mining trouble is on the increase, and that it is even apprehended the convicts may be let loose to overrun Tennessee and Kentucky, a new solution of the convict labor question is offered in Mississippi. The constitution of that state adopted in 1890 made it compulsory on the state to abolish the convict lease system by or before 1894. The determination has been reached to put the convicts to farming. How this will work remains to be seen, as how the farmers of the state will be affected by it. Under humane officers and management certainly no better arrangement for the convicts themselves could be provided.

President Harrison's governor of Alaska has a son whom the colonists of Sitka threaten to tar and feather. These sons of reigning families are giving a good deal of trouble of late.

If Rev. Dr. Lorimer's expressed opinion that "a man should rest himself as he sees fit on the Sabbath day" shocks Col. Editor Shepard into temporary silence the country will be grateful.

A new novel much discussed is entitled "An Utter Failure." If the author has written the history of the second term boomlet he is a little premature but otherwise correct.

It is too cruel of the Philadelphia Times to say the republican party in Ohio is no better than a party of smugglers just because it seeks to evade the tariff.

AMASA LYON IN TROUBLE.

New York, Sept. 10.—Amasa Lyon & Co., a corporation manufacturing umbrellas at 684 Broadway, has become insolvent and unable to meet maturing obligations, and Andrew J. Nutting has been appointed temporary receiver, on the application of the trustees.

The liabilities are $76,630 and nominal assets $142,000 in stock and accounts, which, forced upon the market now, the trustees do not think would realize more than $65,000. The trustees believe that under proper management by a receiver, there are enough assets to pay off all obligations and leave a small surplus.

TALK OF A COMPROMISE.

Salem, Mass., Sept. 10.—Those in a position to be familiar with the Searles will case say that the prospect is good for a compromise before the hearing comes up two weeks hence.

They say that the Southern Pacific stock is held together under this will and that rather than take the risk of breaking up this large block of stock the parties will pay roundly and that Timothy Hopkins is really the only one who has any case that will bear any sort of a judicial investigation.

APT DEFINITIONS.

A subscriber sends in these apt definitions of the terms Protection and Reciprocity, which Mr. N. Bartlett and many others will appreciate:

Protection—A good word stolen by the republican party to label the leading swindle of the age.

Reciprocity—A small dose of free trade intended to be so judiciously administered as to shut the public eye to the enormity of the said swindle.—Boston Globe.

FOUND HER DEAD BODY.

Montreal, Sept. 10.—The mutilated body of a woman was found in the hold of the steamship Fremont on the arrival of that vessel from Newcastle, Eng., yesterday. The woman was no doubt murdered and the authorities are making an investigation. The woman, it is said, came on board at Newcastle with an unknown man. The police at Newcastle have been notified.

DYNAMITE FOR ARGUMENT.

Escanaba, Mich., Sept. 10.—A dynamite cartridge has been found under the rink where Chiniquay, the noted ex-priest, held his meetings, and the excitement of the recent religious riots has been revived. Chiniquay's adherents insist that the explosive was intended to blow up the building. Excitement runs high, and there is still talk of violence.

BABY MCKEE TO GO.

Boston, Sept. 10.—The family of President Harrison have engaged a suit of rooms at the Woodlawn Park hotel, Auburndale, where they will spend some time. The party, which is expected to arrive on Saturday, will consist of Mrs. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. McKee and baby McKee.

GATHERING IN THE SPOILS.

New York, Sept. 10.—A Herald special from Callao, Peru, says a transport with a number of the Junta's soldiers arrived there yesterday. They have come to take possession of the Imperial and Condell, which surrendered to the Chilian minister at Callao.

KILLED BY FALLING WALLS.

Leads, Sept. 10.—The wall of a foundry in this city collapsed to-day. Two children were instantly killed, and two others were removed from the ruins in a dying condition.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

Boston, Sept. 10.—A dividend of $3 per share will be paid by the Bell telephone company on Oct. 15.

RIPE FOR A REPUBLIC.

The Spanish Monarchy Liable to Fall.

The Barcelona Incident Was Premature,

But It May be Followed at no Distant Date by the Founding of a New Government.

London, Sept. 10.—Madrid advices state that the government is in possession of evidence going to show a conspiracy for the overthrow of the monarchy and the establishment of a republic.

The authorities are very reticent, but there is now no doubt that the recent Barcelona outbreak was a premature explosion of a section of a mine that revolutionists abroad and at home have been for some time engaged in laying.

It is said that a revolutionary movement has been delayed in the expectation that the young king might fall a victim to some of the ills of childhood and thereby give a favorable pretext and opportunity for an outbreak.

The fiasco at Barcelona was owing to the fact that some of the leaders there had failed to receive instructions as to the postponement of the intended insurrection and thereby acted hastily and without any general support. When the movement comes Barcelona is expected to furnish a multitude of recruits for the republican ranks.

The conspiracy is said to be directed from Paris and to have branches in London and Lisbon, the overthrow of the Portuguese monarchy, and the institution of an Iberian republic that will take in the whole peninsula being in the program.

The queen regent has for some time past been taking energetic steps to detect the arch-conspirators and defeat their machinations. The army is in better condition than for many years, but there is no certainty that its loyalty can be depended on, as the republican propaganda has honeycombed both the army and navy.

Notwithstanding official secrecy there is sufficient evidence that the gravest apprehensions are felt, and that, while the authorities are groping in the dark, they have a well formed idea that a crisis of the utmost gravity for the Spanish monarchy is approaching.

THE LABOR CONGRESS.

The Unionists Have Scored a Victory.

Jubilant Over the Eight-Hour Proposition so Emphatically Adopted.

London, Sept. 10.—A New Castle dispatch says that the new unionists are overjoyed at the victory they have obtained, through Mr. Hardie's clever amendment, over the textile workers who had first gained ascendency in the congress by securing the adoption of the permissive resolution.

Mr. Hardie's resolution provided that the eight hour law should be enforced in all trades and occupations except where a majority of the organized members in any trade or occupation protest by a ballot against the proposal. This amendment was adopted by a vote of 285 to 183, and all other amendments being withdrawn became substantive, and was then by a vote of 341 to 73 adopted as a substitute for the original resolution.

The representatives of the dockers favored a three-fifths, instead of a two-thirds majority.

Sir John E. Gorst is regular in his attendance at the congress, in which he takes deep interest.

Yesterday in an interview with a representative of the United Press, Sir John said it was his intention to visit Chicago during the progress of the world's fair, and also to participate in the proceedings of the labor congress. "That is," he added, "supposing that I am relieved of the cares of office, and you (turning to Mr. Cains, who was present,) will probably have ousted me by that time."

DECLARED OFF.

A Strike and Boycott has Passed Into History.

Steubenville, Sept. 10.—Labor circulars of this city are considerably stirred up because of an announcement by the potters of this city that the strike will be declared off in the boycott raised from the Steubenville potery, of this city.

The potters in the employ of the Steubenville Pottery went out on a strike two years ago last February because of the employment of two non-union men against their emphatic disapproval. Both sides waged a bitter and stubborn fight.

The potters kept a stiff upper lip and sought employment elsewhere. Last spring the eastern branch of the potters, consisting of Trenton, N. J.; Baltimore, Md., and Syracuse, N. Y., who are in the K. of L., declared the boycott off at the Steubenville pottery.

This was done because of the fight between the eastern potters and the western potters who are in the Potters' association. The eastern association expected to work their men in here.

The Potters' association concluded to beat them, and appointed a committee to meet the pottery officials and declare the strike and boycott off, which will be done this week.

They will allow men in the employ of the pottery to work on, but will work their men in when chance opens. The strike and boycott will also be declared off the factory of Bell Bros., of Findlay.

BIG DAY AT PERRYSBURG.

The Corner Stone of the Way Library.

Appropriate Ceremonies and Due Honor Paid to the Man Who Cherished His Neighbors.

Perrysburg, Sept. 10.—Yesterday will be a day long remembered by those witnessing the laying of the corner stone of the Way library.

The site selected by the executors, corner Louisiana and Indiana avenues, is approved by all interested and the name of Willard V. Way, one of the pioneer lawyers of Wood county, who, in his last will and testament, left $15,000 and the interest thereon to the village of Perrysburg for a library, the purchasing of a lot and the erection of a building will ever be honored.

An invitation was extended the bar of Wood county to come upon the stage and was accepted.

Asher Cook made a few remarks, when the pupils of the public schools under the leadership of Superintendent I. N. Saddler, sang "America." Rev. J. C. Shaw then offered prayer, followed by the schools singing "The Corner Stone."

Judge Ridgely, of Tiffin, and Judge Dodge, J. W. Canary, R. S. Baker, J. C. Troup, B. F. James of Bowling Green, and Superintendent I. N. Saddler, of this place, each had words of respect for the man who made such a gift to this village.

Denison B. Smith, secretary board of trade, Toledo, was present.

WHEAT STEALING

From Railroad Cars—An Evil Which Has Grown to Some Proportions.

During the great rush of grain-laden cars arriving here since the fall crop commenced to move, some few weeks ago, the usual thieving of grain from cars has been nightly carried on in all the freight yards in the city.

Only yesterday a detective spotted two wagon loads containing some 90 bushels of wheat and 10 bushels of rye which were sold on the streets, and as the teamster and party claiming to own the grain are known, it is understood that they will be soon arrested and brought to justice.

Serious and daily complaints have been made by shippers on account of shortage of weights, who have held the grain merchants and elevators here responsible for the light weights, when in fact to a great extent it has been the result of grain thieves tapping the cars nightly at the yards of all roads centering in our city. To correct the evil for the benefit of the shipper, the railroads and the elevators two things ought to be done: First, every in-shipper of grain should see that his cars are carefully sealed before leaving his or their station, and second, the railroads should see to it and have a sufficient number of watchmen to successfully patrol their yards nightly, being clothed with police authority and promptly arrest all persons found loitering around the yards. If this was done a large portion of the shippers' complaints for short weights would be removed.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

Democratic Committee Fixes It for September 19,

The Delegates to be Selected the Evening Previous Under the Primary System.

The members of the Lucas county central committee met this morning at Secretary Vanfleet's office, to set the time and manner of holding the democratic county convention.

After an interchange of views, it was decided to hold the convention on Saturday, September 19, at 10 o'clock, at a place to be determined hereafter.

The delegates are to be chosen on Friday evening, September 18, from 7 to 9 p. m., under the primary system, the same as when delegates were chosen to the state convention.

The apportionment was fixed at one delegate for each 50 votes and fraction over 25 cast for Hon. T. E. Cromley last November.

A member of the central committee will also be elected at the primaries.

The convention will select delegates to the senatorial convention, to be held at Ottawa on the 24th inst.

Supervisors for the primaries and the official call will be printed in a few days.

ADAMS IN LINE.

Organization of a Democratic Club in the Township.

The democrats of Adams township last night perfected an organization of a democratic club, with an enthusiasm which augurs well for its success. The secretary, together with the members of the County Central club from Adams township, were present, and gave an account of the objects aimed at and the methods which had been adopted by that body.

About thirty democrats present came forward and joined the club, and a large additional number were presented to be voted upon at the next meeting.

Adjournment was had for one week. At that time another rousing meeting is promised. Speakers are to be present and the campaign in Adams township opened with a hurrah.

WILL THE JEWS DIG?

Discussing Their Ability to Become Farmers.

If They Will Not Till the Soil in Russia Can They be Expected to Do So Here.

New York, Sept. 10.—The Herald's European edition publishes to-day the following:

In the statement denying the charge that Baron Hirsch's money is to be used to send destitute Russian Jews to America, Lord Rothschild probably uses the word "America" to mean the United States, as I have just received the following note from Dr. Herman Adler, chief rabbi of Great Britain:

"Office of the Chief Rabbi. I had a long interview with Baron Hirsch some little time ago. His desire is to settle the poor exiled Jews of Russia in agricultural colonies in Argentina and Canada. Yours faithfully, H. Adler."

This is a most important statement, made by the highest authority in the world. To those familiar with the failure of the past efforts of Russia to induce the Jews to take up agricultural land, Baron Hirsch's plan—which I now authoritatively announce—will be interesting. The question is if a Jew will not dig in Russia will he dig in Argentina or Canada?

MUCH IMPROVED,

But Still Unconscious—Such is Elsass' Condition at the Jefferson.

To-day the condition of Mr. J. C. Elsass, the victim of the Jefferson gas accident, was very much improved. He is still unconscious, but is resting much easier than last night. P. Elsass, his brother, Dr. Bailey, and T. F. Williams arrived from Waynesburgh last night.

Mr. Elsass accompanied the remains of Mr. Boyd back to Waynesburgh this morning.

Dr. Bailey an Mr. Williams will remain with their patient until he recovers.

From Mr. Williams, who is one of the directors of the Brick and Clay company represented by Mr. Boyd and Mr. Elsass, it was learned that both gentlemen are very popular at Waynesburgh, and that the sad affair has cast a gloom over the entire city.

Mr. Boyd leaves only one son, who is a prosperous farmer near Waynesburgh.

Mrs. J. C. Elsass and her brother, of Waynesburgh, arrived this morning and are anxiously watching at the bedside of Mr. Elsass, who is still unconscious, but slowly improving.

Mrs. Elsass was very much prostrated at first by his death-like appearance, but has recovered enough to assist Dr. Bailey in attending the sick man.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

OBSTRUCTING THE STREETS

To the Editor—I wonder the city council and natural gas trustees allow Kerlin Bros. to rip and tear up the streets of Toledo and leave the trenches open so long, as is the case on Jefferson street, to the detriment of travel on that street.

There are numerous complaints about the condition of our streets since this man Kerlin commenced laying pipe through the city. If there is any way to stop this, it is time some one should take hold and bring these parties to time.

He has numerous streets torn up, and none of them are passable. It is about time the proper authorities took action.

ANOTHER LOAD TO CARRY

Russell Harrison Also a Real Estate Shark.

Over a Quarter of Million of Good Dollars

Taken Out of the Pockets of the People by This Young Man, Aided by Reed's Congress.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 10.—The Aransas harbor, city and improvement company, which two years ago acquired a good deal of sandy beach, on the Gulf coast of Texas, received permission from congress to construct a deep water harbor, and began advertising extensively in northern papers.

A town was laid out and $275,000 worth of lots sold. The company on its part agreed that bonafide work for the deepening of Aransas pass would begin by May 12, 1891.

The second payment on the lots is now due. The drawers of the notes will protest, on the ground that the company has not fulfilled its part of the contract. An enormous litigation will result.

Russell Harrison is president of the company.

ON A TERRIBLE CHARGE.

Mrs. Dr. Dennison Arrested for Child Murder.

Sidney, O., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Scott Dennison, of Troy, O., while visiting the family of C. H. Churchill gave birth to a babe on Wednesday of last week and deposited it in an outhouse vault, where it was discovered on Sunday, wrapped in a piece of quilt, and exhumed.

Dr. Beeman, the coroner, assisted by Dr. Erwin LeFevre, held an inquest, and though the back part of the child's skull was crushed they differed in their opinion whether infanticide had been committed or not, the coroner being disposed to believe the mother, who said that it was born dead.

Last evening she was arrested, and this morning Dr. Le Fevre swore out an affidavit charging her with murder.

She was put in the female department of the jail, her little 6-year-old daughter accompanying her, to await the action of the grand jury.

Her husband, Dr. Dennison, has been in the Dayton insane asylum for over a year. She has a grown daughter and a son in the teens, has occupied a respectable position in society, and has considerable property.

TESTING TERRORITE.

An Explosive More Powerful Than Dynamite.

The Mexican Government Has Purchased the Right to Use It on Land and Water.

New York, Sept. 10.—Gen. Abbott and Col. Mordecay arrived at Fort Hamilton shortly after 10 a. m. yesterday and made a final test of the new chemical high explosive compound known as terrorite.

Holes were dug in the ground six feet deep at the northwestern corner of the fort. A hollow shell of copper was then filled with 12 pounds of the explosive and packed with cotton.

The shell was then placed in the improvised pit and covered solidly with earth to the surface. It was exploded by means of an ordinary prime.

The detonation was a long, muffled one, without any smoke, but a volume of earth weighing fully a ton was hurled through the air in almost every direction, rising to a height of twenty-five or thirty feet.

The enormous force of terrorite was evidenced by the crater which it left around the pit, and which measured nearly twelve feet in diameter.

The same quantity of dynamite or nitroglycerine would not have done half as much damage. Four shells were fired in all, with practically the same results, while the weight of the charge was changed in each instance.

In addition to its great destructive force the new explosive offers advantages hitherto sought in vain. It can be handled more safely than gun powder, which adds to its value in warfare. Its force can also be regulated and it is claimed to be at least four times as powerful as dynamite.

Terrorite is not affected by jarring or jolting, and so its transportation in cars or ships does not endanger life. Like dynamite it cannot be exploded by mere application of fire.

Dynamite cannot be relied upon after it has been stored for a number of years. The inventor of terrorite claims that its quality will not deteriorate under any conditions. This, of course, is a matter of conjecture, as the United States engineering department has not yet been able to test this claim.

Frequent changes of temperature, even below the freezing point, do not affect terrorite to the same extent as dynamite, nor does it disintegrate in contact with iron, copper, brass, zinc, or any other metal.

The chief value of the new explosive is that it can be used for artillery purposes. It can be safely fired with gun powder from any rifle or mortar.

At the moment of explosion the shell bursts with greater force than if it were filled with ordinary powder. Terrorite can also be used in charging torpedoes or submarine mines.

A shell of solid steel weighing 1,000 pounds thrown from a 12-inch steel rifle and filled with this explosive would not only pierce 16-inch armor, but would prove very destructive when its contents were distributed.

Terrorite is an American invention. The Mexican government has purchased the right to use it both on land and water. Mexican artillery officers say they are highly satisfied with the result.

THEY CLAIM THE EARTH,

And the Supreme Court Makes the Claim Good.

A Decision of Much Importance to Single Trolley Electric Street Car Companies.

Saratoga, Sept. 10.—The supreme court has just handed down a decison of great importance to electric railway companies in this state operating by the single trolley system.

About two years ago the Watervliet turnpike and railroad company, operating a line of street railways between Albany and West Troy, sought to change its motive power from horses to electricity, using the single trolley system.

The Hudson River Telephone company was then operating a telephone line between those municipalities.

They claimed by authority of their franchise, and from the possession of the ground with their electric line and currents between the two places, using the earth as a return line.

Upon this claim they obtained an injunction against the street railway company, forbidding them to use electricity in the manner proposed.

The supreme court declines to vacate the injunction.

Scandalous State of Affairs in Canada.

Everybody Had to be "Sugared" or the Wheels of State Would Not Turn.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 10.—Further exposures of "Senecalism" were made before the committee on public accounts yesterday morning.

Mr. Scott, bookkeeper for the Dominion Type Foundry, Montreal, told how Senecal was constantly worrying for commissions, and complaining that he was "hungry"—so much so that the firm became apprehensive that all their profits would at last find their way into the superintendent's insatiable maw.

One large order for type given the foundry was repudiated by Chapleau, the secretary of state, until $1,500 was subscribed to the conservative association, when all became plain sailing.

Joseph Morgan, another witness, related how Senecal gave him a great order for 60 tons of mill board for bookbinding, apparently merely for the sake of a paltry $200 commission.

The witness declared that he had never placed such a large order before. The tory majority in the committee twice voted down a question that threatened to implicate the secretary of state, so that the sums of money wrung from the paper contractors for election purposes were not made public.

It was brought out in evidence to-day that the manager of the Dominion Type Foundry, Mr. Crosby, took possession of incriminating letters written by Chapleau and started on a holiday trip to British Columbia, where he now is.

THE CLEVELANDS BY THE SEA.

Some Difference in Tastes, but They Manage to Equalize the Pleasure.

Mr. Cleveland and his wife appear to have come to a most amicable arrangement for the most enjoyable persuit of their special pleasures and pastimes. He takes a drive with her around to the Jefferson, not so much because he is so fond of driving, for he is not, especially so, but more to please his sweet better half. On the other hand, she is not especially fond of boating, fishing or the water. Dry land with plenty of water close by, meets her pleasure rather better.

But Grover must go fishing. He usually goes alone in his small craft, but when a more substantial craft, like the steam yacht Oneida, heaves in sight down the bay with a well-known and jolly crowd aboart, it's different with her. Then Mrs. Cleveland repays her husband for his kindness in enjoyed her pleasure drives with her. She becomes interested at once in the water, or rather what is upon it. The fair young wife is in healthy spirits. She likes company and vivacity to accompany her recuperative days in fair proportion, and the couple appear to take advantage of circumstances most cleverly to unite the fancy of the one and the other and of both together.

WOMEN OF SOUTH AMERICA.

The Sex Winning Bread In the United States Is to Them a Munchausen Tale.

Love-making apparently is the sole industry and art of the women of South America. Latin blood is the source of the population. Until invigorated by healthy immagination, or until war depopulates, as did our late rebellion, cutting off the supply of "Prince Charming," women thinkers, bread-winners in the higher walks, are liable to be unknown in South America.

The delegates sent out by the Lady Board of managers will probably be accorded a hearing. Their story of the marvelous growth and power of American women is almost a Munchausen fable founded on fact, to which these Southern women may listen with the awe of children, but with little or no desire to imitate us.

"Women, ladies, work in the United States, earn their own clothes and pay for what they eat!" asked the wife of a South American dignitary. "What a niggardly set of men they must be!" And she affectionately patted her rich laces, admired the jewels flashing on her plump brown fingers, and doubtlessly secretly dubbed Juan not a bad fellow.

TRUE FAITH.

"You tell me that your child is dead;
And yet you greet me with a smile,
And let the sunshine flood your rooms
And with a song your grief beguile!"

"And why not smile? If she had gone
To dwell in sunny Italy,
To gaze upon those palsied slopes
And wander by that summer sea;

"Would I not joy to follow her
In thought beneath those classic skies,
To note with every changing scene
The rapture in her glad young eyes?

"Yet with my winging joy, alas!
Alway a brooding fear would mate,
Not knowing when along the way
Some nameless woe might lay in wait.

"But now for her, with love enshered,
No evil thing can work its spell;
Safe to the land of all the fearless
The fields where living fountains well.

"Then why not smile and open wide
My windows to the blessed light,
Since one forevermore abides
In that fair land that knows no night!"

Horn seems to have become a favorite ornamentation for fancy goods. It is utilized for anything from a pen rack to a hat rack.

A pretty receptacle for a cologne bottle is a piece of bisque showing an elf with a basket on his back; the bottle of cologne rests in the basket.

The word "preface," used in the beginning of books, was originally a word of welcome to a meal, and was equivalent to "Much good may it do you."

A horn resting on four polished black knobs has in the larger end a plush-covered plug; a number of holes in this plug are intended for nut picks. A nut cracker rests on top.

Four horns projecting from a cherry wood frame serve the purpose of a rack on which to place penholders and pencils. Bright brass ornaments complete an artistic effect.

A cleverly contrived vessel for cologne is fashioned after a sprinkling pot. The handle and spout are of metal and the rest of glass; tiny holes in the spout send out what is almost a spray.

Sally, the interesting chimpanzee of the Zoological gardens, London, has departed this life. She could count up to seven, had a large acquaintance, and had often been interviewed by Darwin.

There are more women in British India (124,000,000) than there are men, women and children in Great Britain, France and Germany put together, with the population of several minor European states cast in as well.

The weight of each anchor plate on the Brooklyn bridge is 23 tons, the height of the towers above the roadway is 159 feet. Just six years after the first wire was strung across the East river for the bridge the first passenger crossed.

A nectarine was found growing on a peach tree at Ventura, the other day, on the same stem with a small, fuzzy peach. The nectarine was the only one found on the tree—"all the others," as the Ventura Observer naively remarks, "being peaches."

The Empress of Russia, in her fondness for dancing, has evening parties that bore her royal husband, and it is related that on one or two occasions he has sent the guests home betimes by touching an electric buttons and extinguishing all the lights in the room.

The canal which is to connect Manchester, England, with the sea is one of the greatest undertakings of modern times. Its total length will be 33½ miles. It will be 26 feet deep, 120 feet wide at the bottom and 230 feet at the top. It is about three-fourths completed and will cost about $45,000,000.

Patti's little theater in her Welsh castle is exquisitely furnished. It is decorated in white and gold in the style of the Renaissance, with hangings of pale blue, ivory and gold. The chairs are upholstered in sapphire and velvet, with which the proscenium also is draped.

The celebrated Treadwell mine on Douglas Island, Alaska, keeps 240 stamps going. The mine is an immense quarry of pay ore, enough being in sight to keep the mill, said to be the largest in the world, at work for 50 years. It is four miles from Juneau, a town of 1,200 inhabitants.

In very exquisite circles an ingenious device is adding to the fragrance of lavender water and crushed violet perfumes. It consists of a small sachet bag placed in the palm of the hand within one's glove. When an extended digit is grasped it is impregnated with a delicate, delirious odor which lingers for hours, leaving a reminder of one long after one has really departed.

As most people know, Schultz is a very common name among Germans. A striking illustration of that fact is found in the city directory of Berlin, which has nearly two hundred pages of citizens bearing that name. And in certain departments of the city government there are numerous subdepartments, each having a different set of clerks to take care of special divisions of the Schultz family.

M. H. De Young, the California editor, started his first newspaper in San Francisco in 1865 on a capital of $20—and that loaned him by a more prosperous acquaintance. Bret Harte was at that time a clerk in the mint and did his first writing for Mr. De Young's paper, never asking for pay for his contributions. Within a few weeks after the paper was started its advertising receipts were $1,000 a month.

At a glassworks in White Mills, Wayne county, there is on exhibition what is regarded as the finest set of cut glass ever turned out in this country. It consists of 520 separate pieces and has been ordered by the United States government for the white house. On each piece of the set, from the mammoth center piece and punch bowl to the tiny salt cellars, is engraved the coat of arms of the United States. This work alone has occupied months of time. The total cost will be in the neighborhood of $6,000.

In the matter of mere distance covered, the records of the world's famous travelers do not make much of a show beside those of some railroad men. An old railroad man named Layton, now a sleeping car superintendent at Indianapolis, has kept a record of his journeyings since 1863, and the total is 2,388,246 miles. Conductor S. G. Boone, late of the Reading, has covered 2,847,050 miles. Even these figures would probably be far surpassed by the records of some of the old captains of the ocean steamships.

Not long ago the Acton (England) school board asked its officer why a certain gentleman's children did not attend the school. The officer replied that he had done his best to induce the gentleman to send his children to the Acton school, but that the gentleman would not. "Then why don't you serve him with a summons or a notice or whatever will meet the case?" asked the board. "Because," replied the officer, "the gentleman's bed is so placed that only his legs are placed in Acton, and I can't very well serve summons upon a man's legs. His head is in Hammersmith, so that whenever I appear he has only to pull up his legs and he is no longer in Acton at all."

A saddler near Stratford, England, named Ryan has discovered on an old oaken cupboard an inscription to the purport that the article of furniture was made by Shakespeare's own hand. The cupboard has been in the possession of the family for more than 100 years, but the inscription was covered until recently, when it appeared in the process of cleaning. It is said that the cupboard originally came from an old house, now demolished, which had been occupied by Shakespeare's family. The inscription is in copper nails driven into the wood, and runs thus: "I bought it. I sawed it. I nailed it and I carved it.

STREET GAMINS.

They are Much Alike the World Over,

Even if Their Language is Different.

Some of the Characters Met With in Different Countries, Yet Their Counterparts May be Seen on Our Own Streets.

The street Arabs, gamins and childbeggars of different countries form an interesting study to the observing traveler. They often show in minature the miseries of the unfortunate part of the population and thus form a small social problem of their own. The traveler cannot help seeing and noticing these urchins for everywhere the gamins place themselves prominently before him in their endeavors to do business with him in their small way, or with a plea for alms. The youthful wanderer on the streets generally has his insufficient education supplemented by a keen wit perternaturally sharpened by the exences of misery and want, therefore when he pushes himself forward he often relieves the odium of his presence by making himself a fund of brief amusement for those who appreciate his wit and quick repartee.

The gamins of different countries dress in somewhat different styles though, of course, rags are the prevailing fashion. They speak many languages, but all the world over their nature is the same.

CARTWHEELS FOR COIN.

They are reared on the streets and never know the influences of a home, they exist as best they can, are common subjects for kicks and abuse and generally turn out bad. Those that a traveler encounters during a tour abroad, may speak in a foreign tongue, but their mission is the same.

Down trodden and oppressed Ireland has a superabundance of poor people and the beggars and gamins form an unusually large proportion of the people. The Irish and English gamins are not unlike those seen in every American city so far as their appearance goes. In those countries, however, begging is more common than in this "land of the free" and little Irish lads who turns cartwheels in front of you on the street or beside a 'bus, is most persistent in his demands for a penny. He will follow you for blocks and relate a doleful tale of woe interspersed with many a "God bless you," and promises to say any number of "Hail Marys" for a small coin.

The youthful beggar also relieves his story with many witty remarks and quick answers to questions that may be put to him. In Dublin we met two urchins who showed a fine idea of sarcasm for after following along the street for ten minutes, without receiving anything, one of them stopped and called the other off with the remark: "Cum on, Jimmie, dems two fly blokes as aint got nothin' anyhow."

"MATCHES! PENNY A BOX, SIR."

When we had passed to what they thought a safe distance ahead, one called out loudly: "Say, Jimmie, how much did you get?"

"A bob," answers Jimmie.

"Deeto," says the other and off they go hunting another victim who will be more liberal.

The London street Arabs are not so bright as their Irish brothers and they have a more dejected appearance. His principal occupation, aside from begging, seems to be selling matches and blacking boots. There are also plenty of newsboys but they are not really so numerous there as in the United States. Street-sweeping is another occupation for these lads when they care to work.

The children of the street in this great city furnish many a curious character and might provide substance for a good sized volume. While we were in London there was a crippled boy who sat on the sidewalk each day, in front of the South Kensington Museum and covered the stone pavement with colored chalk drawings of considerable merit. His pictures represented all sorts of subjects and never failed to attract the attention of the passers-by. This young artist stated that his collections were very satisfactory.

Even in their games these London lads are not much different from the Americans and we were very much amused one morning in watching a game of cricket in the moat of London Tower. None of the players were over 12 years old, but they made enough noise for an army and acted for all the world like a crowd of American boys at base ball. They would yell and quarrel, using an extensive vocabulary of choice Billingsgate until finally the game broke up in a general fight.

The urchins on the continent are but little different except as to dress and most of them have the additional accomplishment of being able to speak in several different languages. In Belgium, where we first landed, were met the most interesting subjects. Here the lower classes all wear wooden shoes and the children make a most terrific clatter when running about the paved streets. It is a wonder how they keep their shoes on their feet, for most of them seem to have been handed down from father to son and are several sizes too large. They never come off, however, and the children run about without ever thinking of being bothered.

In Antwerp we met a ragged 13-year-old lad who addressed us in English and asked for a sou. We pretended not to understand and he commenced talking French. We knew nothing about this and then he spoke in German. By this time our astonishment got the better of us and we spoke to the boy. We found him to be an intelligent youngster, well posted on America and could speak Flemish besides the languages mentioned above, this being his native tongue.

The boy acted as our guide for a few hours and like all street gamins was well posted on the sights of the cities.

The boys in Germany and France were much like the others and it would seem that boy nature is about the same the world over.

HE WAS TOO OFFICIOUS.

A Detective in Uncle Sam's Secret Service.

It will be remembered that some time ago Chief Drummond, of the secret service of the United States treasury department, sent a detective to this city to destroy the plates owned and operated by F. W. Thomas in printing the stamps used in the nickel stamp saving system, recently adopted by the People's Savings and Building association. The detective put in an appearance at Mr. Thomas' office on Superior street, and with all the dignity of a king demanded the plates, that he might destroy them. Mr. Thomas referred the individual to his father, Mr. D. E. Thomas, a prominent attorney of this city. Mr. Thomas informed the detective that it wouldn't be safe to execute such orders, and advised him to drop the project where it was, as it would be contested to the last appeal.

United States Commissioner Hall was next consulted, in hopes that he would maintain Chief Drummond's position, but he sustained Mr. Thomas' opinion, holding that the stamp didn't bear the slightest resemblance to a legal nickel, and that it was far from being a counterfeit for the reason that there are no script nickels in circulation.

Not satisfied with the opinion of this authority District Attorney Brinsmade, of Cleveland, was appealed to, but to no avail, as the opinion of Messrs. Thomas and Hall was concurred in by that official and it has since leaked out that the case was carried to the attorney-general, as a last resort, and the result was a confirmation of the opinion of the gentlemen above named.

F. W. Thomas then solicited the opinion of Attorney Brinsmade by mail, and the following is the reply:

"Sir: I acknowledge the receipt of your communication in which you wish my opinion as to whether the use of the nickel stamp printed by you, various samples of which you have submitted, is in any manner a violation of the laws of the United States. In my opinion the laws of the United States are not violated either in printing of or sale of the same. Respectfully,
"ALLAN J. BRINSMADE,
"U. S. Attorney, Ninth District Ohio."

The following is the section of the law, enacted by congress February 10, 1891, under which Chief Drummond would have destroyed the plates:

"That every person who makes, or who causes or procures to be made, or who brings into the United States from any foreign country, or who shall have in possession with intent to sell, give away, or in any other manner use the same, any business or professional card, notice, placard, token, device, print, or impression, or any other thing whatsoever, whether of metal or its compound, or of any other substance whatsoever, in likeness or similitude, as to design, color or the inscription thereon of any of the coins of the United States or of any foreign government, that have been or may hereafter be issued as money, under the authority of the United States or under the authority of any foreign government, shall, on conviction thereof, be punished by a fine not to exceed $100."

Said Commissioner Hall to a Bee: "The law is unconstitutional and ridiculous. Not so very long ago an officer of the secret service of the United States treasury department came to me to issue a warrant on the strength of this law, and I refused to do so."

SOUTHERN EXPOSITION.

New York, Sept. 10.—A delegation of 26 prominent business men of Augusta, Ga., arrived in the city to-day via Washington and Philadelphia and registered at the Hoffman house. The party is in charge of Patrick Walsh, the president of the Augusta exposition which will open in that city on November 2, continuing until November 28. The object of the delegation is to visit the middle and New England states for the purpose of inducing manufacturers to exhibit their goods at the exposition.

ALL WERE FATALLY WOUNDED.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 10.—Three young men were mortally wounded at Pembrook, Ga., on Monday. Two of them were sons of J. B. Brown, ex-Ordinary of Bryan county, and the third was P. H. Patrick. One of the Browns and Patrick came to blows over a settlement. The other Brown tried to separate them when Patrick mistaking his motive, drew a pistol and shot him. Then all three drew pistols and began to shoot. When their pistols were emptied all three lay on the ground with fatal wounds.

Still Taking Testimony.

Coroner Howell is still taking testimony in the case of Orion Wiseley. Summing it all up as given, it begins to prove beyond a doubt that it was a clear case of foul play. The unfortunate young man was so worried over his troubles with the girl he married that in a mad moment he sent a ball crashing through his brain. It is thought a verdict will be reached to-morrow.

ANYTHING TO BEAT BEN.

How the Indiana Republicans Feel.

Blaine and Hovey the Only Ticket That Will Satisfy the Hoosiers.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Charles E. Marvin is an influential republican politician in Indiana who spends much of his time in Washington. He has just returned to this city after a month's tour through Hoosierdom. Here is the result of his obversations in Harrison's home state:

"Can Harrison carry the Indiana delegations? No, sir; nor can he hope to get more than a small portion of it at best. Fours years ago the opposition to him was of no consequence, the great bulk of the party being for Harrison with no second choice, but by his icicle course he has alienated at least two-thirds of his following, among whom are such men as Alvin P. Hovey, governor; Ira Chase, lieutenant-governor; Major Houston, ex-United States treasurer; Capt. J. B. White, who beat Judge Lowrey in the banner democratic district of the state; 'Private Joe' Cheadle, who received more republican votes than any man in the last house; Johnson of Crawfordsville; Frank Posey, Gen. Rube Williams, and, in fact, every man who rendered him especially valuable service, including Col. W. W. Dudley, who did more toward Harrison's election than any other one man in the country. Add to this list two-thirds of the most influential republican newspapers in the state—like the Evansville Journal, Terre Haute Express, Fort Wayne Gazette, Lafayette Call, Marion Chronicle, Frankfort Crescent, Logansport Journal, Wabash Plain Dealer, Rennselaer Republican, Michigan City News, Delphi Journal, Warsaw (Ind.) Republican—in fact, every republican paper in the state whose editor or proprietor does not hold some government position, and you can judge how near he will come to getting the delegation's vote. But I do not think he can be made to see it. I do not think Mr. Harrison could be made to believe that he is not the great 'I am,' the one altogether lovely and the only one for whom the old republicans sigh and the young ones cry.

"Indiana is for Blaine and Hovey. Hovey is governor, a soldier of two wars, an advocate of pensions and the strongest man personally in the state in either party. Blaine and Hovey can carry Indiana by a handsome majority.

"Blaine has always been a great favorite with Indiana republicans, who are naturally political fighters, and Hovey is now the favorite son. He defeated the strongest man in the state for governor four years ago.

"Two years ago the democrats carried the state by twenty odd thousand in consequence of 60,000 republicans staying away from the polls. They were determined that Mr. Harrison should not claim a republican victory as an indorsement of himself, as they knew very well he would not should the state go republican. Indiana is a protection state, and, next to Blaine, McKinley stands as well as any republican in the country.

"The development of natural gas has added largely to her manufacturing interests and placed her among the leading manufacturing states of the union, as you will see by reference to the late census reports. A great help to the republicans there is the immense wheat crop just harvested, the largest ever grown in the state. Oats, hay and vegetables were better than the average and fruits of all kinds bore beyond the expectations of the most sanguine. So there will be nothing to fear from Indiana if Blaine is nominated, but a wooden man can carry the state against Harrison.

"They are now forming young republican clubs in the interests of the Blaine and Hovey movement all over the state, but their war cry will be anybody to beat Harrison, with C. W. Fairbanks, the millionaire, and G. W. Allen of the Terre Haute Express, son-in-law of Riley McKeen, the railroad magnate and banker, as general supervisors. Fairbanks and Allen are hustlers from way back and supported as they are can be set down as sure winners. As early as last winter every postmaster in Indiana was furnished with blanks and each one exerted himself to form clubs, faintly disguising the fact that they were to indorse Harrison. The effort was a flat failure."

THE OHIO NEGRO VOTE

Trying to Drift Away From Republicans.

The Administration is Having a Peck of Trouble Over the Haytian Appointment.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The appointment of John S. Durham, of Philadelphia, as minister to Hayti to succeed Fred Douglass, has been very unfavorably received by the colored portion of the Ohio contingent here.

They had a candidate in the person of C. A. Maxwell, of Xenia. Secretary Foster also was very anxious to secure Maxwell's appointment in order to appease the wrath of the colored brothers in Ohio who were showing a disposition to kick over the traces.

Walter S. Thomas, one of the best known colored men in Ohio, said to-day: "The appointment of Durham was a serious blunder on the part of the administration. I cannot believe that President Harrison understood the situation when he ignored C. A. Maxwell's friends and selected Mr. Durham for the Haytian mission. Mr. Maxwell was indorsed by the colored people of Ohio almost to a man and was urged by Secretary Foster. It was mighty poor politics to appoint a man from Pennsylvania."

"Will the colored voters of Ohio resent the appointment of Durham?"

"Most assuredly they will," he answered. "I am already in receipt of letters that show the state of feeling there. Let one-third of the colored voters of Ohio stay away from the polls and where is the republican party? We have 37,000 voters there and our people feel that they have been waiting long enough for recognition. They do not complain so much that their candidate, Mr. Maxwell, was not appointed, but they do complain that the importance of the negro vote in such doubtful states as Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan is not recognized. They now propose to take such action as will bring the republicans to their senses.

"Do you know," he continued, "that the colored voters in the states I have named hold the balance of power in a national election? It is a fact. A concerted move on the part of the negroes in these states to stay at home or vote the democratic ticket means republican defeat in 1892. The republican party owes more to the negro than it has ever paid and he proposes showing just how valuable he is in Ohio this fall."

The confidence of people who have tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, in this preparation, is remarkable. It has cured many who have failed to derive any good whatever from other articles. For diseases caused by impure blood or low state of the system it is unsurpassed.

LEFT THE KNIGHTS.

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 10.—The Lasters union has decided to sever its alliance with the Knights of Labor because the latter refused to call out its members employed in Hollis & Co.'s shop when the lasters were discharged for refusing to accept a reduction of wages.

To get relief from indigestion, biliousness, constipation or torpid liver without disturbing the stomach or purging the bowels, take a few doses of Carter's Little Liver Pills, they will please you.

DREADED QUICKSANDS.

How To Escape From Them.

Like a man sinking in a quicksand is that person who suffers from nervousness, weakness and disease. He gets into it without knowing it, and only realizes his danger when he finds himself slowly, but surely, declining in health and strength.

There is but one sure way to escape from the quicksand—get out before sinking too deep. The same rule applies to disease—use the right remedy before it is too late.

All, therefore, who find their powers of mind and thought weakened, their nerves unstrung and unsteady, nights sleepless and unrefreshing, bodies tired and exhausted, blood poor, with malaria, digestion impaired, kidneys and liver out of order and bowels constipated, should realize that they are sinking in the quicksand of disease, and that they must use Dr. Greene's Nervura to cure now—at once—or it may be fatally too late.

Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great Nerve, Brain and Blood Invigorator, is absolutely sure in all such cases. It is guaranteed purely vegetable and harmless. For sale by druggists, $1.00 per bottle. Use it, sufferer, and it will certainly restore you to health.

"Dr. Greene's Nervura cured me. I take great pleasure in stating that Dr. Greene's Nervura is the finest and best nerve medicine that I have ever taken, and I advise any sufferer with nervous diseases or nervous prostration to use Dr. Greene's Nervura, the best nerve remedy discovered.

TOLEDO REAL ESTATE.

A Week of Better Movement is Reported.

Horace Walbridge's New Office Building,

And a Brief Description of the Same—The Depot Out Dorr Street—Talks With Dealers.

Real estate this week has been quite active, there being a good demand for small property. Two or three blocks were sold to parties who will subdivide. The property that finds the most ready sale in Toledo lies beyond the immediate boundaries of the business portion of the city.

The splendid street railway system of Toledo is accountable for this state of affairs. Business men find it pleasanter to live beyond the noise and turmoil of the city, where they can have room to turn around without tramping on some other man's property. The workingman finds it much cheaper and far more desirable and just as convenient. Were it not for the street car system this could not be. With such a demand to live "out aways," the real estate dealer cannot help but do some business if he has any enterprise whatever in his make up.

Toledo real estate anywhere within the boundaries is as safe an investment as money was ever put into. It is true a man cannot buy to-day and sell to morrow and realize 100 per cent. profit. The very fact that such deals are not made and cannot be made, is additional reason that money invested in Toledo property is just as safe and as sure to bring a profitable return as though it were invested in government bonds.

Outside property is in demand at present and has been all summer, and has met a more ready sale than inside property in the more densely populated portions of the city.

There is a great deal of vacant property on the principal streets, Madison, Adams, Monroe, Jefferson, Superior and St. Clair, which has laid dormant for two or three years, but that is not saying that it has decreased in value. In fact, while the suburbs have been growing and improving and increasing in value as well, this property has been increasing in value with it, though all attention has been diverted from it toward the suburbs. The owners well knew its worth, and when it does move the profit is worth waiting for.

The extraordinary sale of suburban property and the building up thereof, in the last two or three years, is easily accounted for. Within that time the system of selling property on the installment plan has been introduced. A man can pick out any lot he desires, in the suburbs, and buy it, making a small cash payment to insure good faith. The balance is paid by weekly or monthly payments. The lot contracted for, the owner then wants a house. The building associations which have lately been organized in Toledo, will furnish the money to build the house on the same plan.

They advance money only on first mortgage security. This is easily arranged and a man may get into a house of his own on a very small sum of money. The lot is purchased and a second mortgage given, the building association taking a first mortgage, for the house. Thus a man has a home, and another house is added to the building up and improvement of the suburbs.

Auburndale Coming Out.

I. H. Detweiler & Co. yesterday closed a deal whereby they disposed of a nice bunch of lots to Joseph Filo.

The property in question is located in Taylor's addition to Auburndale, and consisted of 10 lots on Auburndale avenue, and the consideration was $2,500. Auburndale is moving up quite lively, and property in that locality is considered gilt edge.

Building Renewed.

"We haven't put up the houses this summer that we did last," said Irving B. Hiett to a BEE, "but we expect to build a great many yet this fall. Building started out in the spring with a rush, and carpenters and contractors had more business than they could attend to. Lumber and brick, in fact all building material took a jump upwards. Well, everything went up so high that we just quit building for the reason that we couldn't put the houses on the market and get what they cost us. Others soon came to the same conclusion and the consequence was, building suddenly dropped off. Contractors often found that they had not employment for their men, and lumbermen and brick makers found that they had considerable high-priced stock on hand and no market for it. The result is plain. They concluded that half a loaf was better than no loaf at all, and sold the stock at reasonable prices. Building is very lively at present, and I think will be more so in the next 60 days. We contracted for two houses on South street this week, and are preparing to contract for two more on Utica street, near Locust. Real estate is quite active and inquiry improving.

A Depot at Last.

For over ten years the residents and property owners in the vicinity of the intersection of Dorr street and the Lake Shore railroad have been endeavoring to have the passenger trains stop at that point, but their efforts have been in vain.

Several weeks ago I. H. Detwiler & Co. took the project in charge and have been working diligently to bring about the desired change ever since. A week or two ago, as was announced in the BEE at the time, they had secured the railroad company's signature to an agreement whereby a regular station would be located at the junction of Dorr street and the railroad.

Yesterday the plans for the building were perfected and the contract for its construction will be let to-day.

The building is 55 feet long and 30 feet wide. Will be covered with a slate roof, painted and finished in a first-class manner. The interior is divided into departments as any of the regular railroad depots are. There will be a waiting room, 17 feet long and 30 feet wide, a freight and baggage room, 26 feet long and 30 feet wide. Between these two is a space, 10 feet wide and 22 feet long, which will be utilized for office purposes. Here a passenger and freight agent and telegraph operator will hold forth. All freight and passenger trains will stop. Tickets will be sold to any and all points, and all business transacted at any railroad depot will be handled here.

Buildings Erected.

Within the year ending April 12, there were 1,999 new buildings erected in Lucas county at a cost of $754,209. During this time 21 manufacturing establishments were located in the county at a cost of $136,416; 24 new stores and warehouses were constructed, valued at $72,375. Six business blocks, club and society buildings were constructed at a cost of $93,000. The total aggregates 1,789 buildings, valued at $1,067,950.

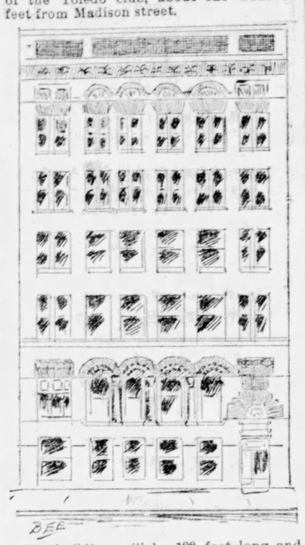
During the year 10 buildings were totally destroyed by fire at a loss of $4,070.

The New Office Building.

If there is anything that Toledo needs in the way of improvement it is a first-class office building. This has been the cry of lawyers, doctors and professional men generally for several years.

H. S. Walbridge, one of Toledo's most enterprising citizens, realized the situation and forthwith instructed E. O. Fallis & Co., architects of this city to get up plans for an office building.

This order was promptly executed and last week ground was broken on Huron street, opposite the Huron street entrance of the Toledo club, about one hundred feet from Madison street.



The building will be 128 feet long and 50 feet wide, and seven stories high, the seventh story to be utilized as general toilet rooms.

The building from the first to the sixth floor, will embrace 85 offices and two banking rooms.

The bank apartments will be on the first and second floors, each including three rooms. The main bank office will be 17 feet wide and 36 feet long. Off from this will be private offices 14 feet wide and 22 feet long and 12 feet wide and 12 feet long. The apartments will be fitted out and finished in first-class style.

Aside from the banking rooms the first and second floors will embrace 12 offices each. The rooms throughout the building are so arranged that they can be thrown into suits of two rooms each, one 11 feet by 14 and the other 14 by 16 feet. These will be rented in suits or single, just as the tenant desires. The other four floors have 16 offices each, of the same dimensions as those of the first and second floors. Each floor has four fire proof vaults. They are also provided with toilet rooms for ladies and gentlemen. The building will be constructed of brick.

The front as high as the third story will be constructed of Oxford blue stone, and the remainder of brown pressed brick and terra cotta trimmings of the same color.

The design of the building is plain, but substantial and pleasing. The interior will be constructed practically fire proof. The floors of the corridor and stair-case, halls and wainscotting will be laid in marble and the stairs constructed of marble and iron.

The plumbing is to be of the best and most modern improvements. Nothing but plate glass will be used throughout the building. The inside finishing will be of quartered oak.

The building will be covered with an asphalt roof, which is strictly fire proof. This will be the first roof of the kind in Toledo, and will be a much needed improvement.

The rooms will be ready for occupation by the first of next May, but renting plans will be ready for inspection by October 1.

investments a young man, an old man, a rich man or a poor man can make and an investment in Real Estate in a growing city and a good neighborhood is bound to increase in value and bring the investor good returns. Not only is the principal absolutely safe, but also pays large dividends. This is simply proven by property value's in

ENGLEWOOD

One case for instance. Four years ago a lot was sold at what was considered a fair price. A short time since the lot was re-purchased at an advance of over fifty per cent. and was remarkably cheap. This is but one lot. Hundreds there are which could not be bought for even twice this increase. The situation of Englewood is such that property must necessarily increase more within the coming few years than ever since its platting. With two systems of street car lines having their cars all but short distance from every street; with gas, water and perfect drainage; with wide paved streets, shaded with beautiful trees; with many of the best and most substantial homes in the city, and in the direct line of growth it has all the advantages which go to make up the ideal

RAILROAD MATTERS.

Mr. Gunckel Teaches Mr. Marshall a Trick.

M. D. Woodford and Party in Town.

Frank Foster's Appointment—Mr Carlisle's Wedding—C., H. V. & T. Earnings—Other Items of Interest.

Henry Marshall, ticket agent at the Union depot, had often heard of the wonderful fishing exploits of John Gunckel, and had marveled at them with the rest of the boys. He revered Mr. Gunckel and gazed at him from afar, never thinking that it would be his lot to angle in company with such a prince of piscatorial Munchausens. To be sure, Mr. Marshall had fished, after a fashion—that is, just fished—he hadn't caught anything, and he had an inate desire to experience the exhileration of pulling a squirming, cunning, gamey fish from its element. Mr. Gunckel heard of Mr. Marshall's desire and thereupon promised to lead him where such pleasing waters flowed as he had imagined in his day dreaming. So yesterday teacher and pupil started out. They proceeded to Raisin Point, near Monroe, Mich., and there cast their lines. Gunckel knew the hole and knew just where to cast and just how to coax. To make the story short, Mr. Marshall saw more fish in a short time than he had ever seen before in the whole period of his natural life. They had 31 bites and landed in 29 of the prettiest pike a fisherman ever caught. There were 29 of them, running in weight from five to eight pounds.

They were gamey too, for Mr. Marshall's pole was broken in the fray and Mr. Gunckel's hands were so lacerated that he has them stuck up with court plaster to-day. The two came into town with their catch swung on their shoulders on a fence rail. Mr. Gunckel says he don't often give away his secrets of successfully landing large and gamey fish but he took pity on Mr. Marshall and broke in on his rule.

C., H. V. & T. Increase.

The Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad earnings for August, 1891, amounted to $324,068, an increase of $45,136 compared with the same month of last year. This is a very good showing as last year was a big one with the road.

No Water Supply.

Some trouble is being experienced by the Columbus Hocking Valley & Toledo railroad in keeping the water tanks on the Toledo division supplied. In less than a week wells at Pemberville, Fostoria and Marion have given out and will have to be driven deeper. Other roads have experienced this same trouble recently in this part of the state.

The T. & O. C. System.

The Toledo & Ohio Central railroad system is to be considerably improved by replacing all wooden bridges on the K. & M. branch with iron structures. Contracts have been let for three bridges and others will be let soon. It is expected to make this roadway equal to that of this end of the system.

Mr. Carlisle's Wedding.

A large party of Toledoans will attend the wedding of C. A. Carliste of this city, formerly purchasing agent of the Toledo & Ohio Central system, and Miss Studebaker, of South Bend, Ind., September 17, and to accommodate them, private sleepers and coaches will be placed, at their disposal by the Lake Shore, leaving here at 7:40 a. m. the day of the wedding and returning at a convenient hour after the ceremony.

A Pleasant Party.

A party of gentlemen accompanied Wm. Gates, of the Union Ticket office, on a trip to Catawba island to-day. They left this morning on Mr. Gate's steam launch Cygnet. They will meet Earnest Gates at the island.

Mr. Woodford and Party.

President M. D. Woodford, of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroads, arrived in this city this morning, accompanied by a party of the New York stockholders of the road. This afternoon they took a trip over the Toledo belt. Some of the party were on the trip over the C., J. & M. with President Woodford the fore part of the week.

Frank Foster's Appointment.

Mr. Frank Foster, one of the oldest and best known of Toledo's railroad agents, left last night for Ashland, Wis., where he has accepted the position of local freight agent of the Wisconsin Central railroad. He went accompanied by the best wishes of his many friends who were glad to learn of his appointment but sorry to part with so old and valued a friend. Mr. Foster is the father of F. N. Foster of this city, agent of the Kanawha Dispatch.

A New Department.

There has been established on the Lake Shore a new department, known as the time inspection service. The company recognizing the necessity of uniform and correct time, every conductor, engineer, fireman and yardmaster must have his watch inspected every six months as to its quality and condition. The first inspection commences September 20 and closes November 1. The expenses will be borne by the company. A staff of division inspectors will soon be appointed.

A. C., H. & D. Report.

Reports are current that an agreement has been made between the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton company and the reorganization committee of the Decatur & Springfield railroad, by which the reorganization of the latter road will be assumed by the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and a lease of the Indianapolis, Decatur & Springfield will be made after the reorganization is effected. The new arrangement is said to provide for the issue of new securities in the place of the present securities and for the payment of the first mortgage bonds and accrued interest in full in cash.

Cinders Here and There.

Commercial Agent C. F. Wight, of the B. & O., is in Chicago.

General Manager J. M. Ferris, of the T. & O. C., is down the line.

The annual meeting of the Clover Leaf directors will be held in New York next week.

A new time card goes into effect on the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw Monday next.

Traveling Freight Agent E. N. Kendall, of the B. & O., went up in Michigan this morning.

A meeting of the Toledo Superintendents association was held yesterday afternoon, but nothing of importance was done.

NEAR DEATH'S DOOR.

W. A. Swenk and Cady Swift Are Rescued rom the Clutches of Asphyxy.

W. A. Swenk and Cady Swift, the young men who came so near meeting their death from asphyxy at their boarding house, 427 Huron street, yesterday, are both safe. The boys do not know how the gas came to be turned on. Swenk was awakened in the night with a fearful feeling of oppression. He could make out Swift on the floor crawling about, but was unable to rise. He couldn't find strength enough to help him or cry out, and in this terrible condition lapsed into unconsciousness.

The doctors worked until 12 o'clock last night with Swift, who was in a critical condition.

It was a narrow escape for both, and they are most thankful that it did not terminate more seriously. To-day young men's lungs are still very much irritated, and breathing is painful.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 10.—The building 107 to 111 Myrtle avenue, occupied by Shellenbergs clothing store and a number of other concerns, was burned to-day. Loss, $200,000. Greenes' ladies' underwear factory on the upper floors loses $50,000.

ELECTRICAL CONGRESS.

The Current to Cut a Figure at the World's Fair.

Montreal, Sept. 10.—The only real interesting address yet delivered before the national electrical convention here was that by General Hornby, secretary of the electrical division of the World's fair in Chicago. He said he had been delegated by Director General Davis, of the World's fair, to appear before the convention and explain the nature of the proposed exhibit.

He then proceeded, by means of a map, to describe the site of the fair, the various buildings, etc. Electricity, he said, would play an important part in the exhibition. A separate building costing $75,000 would be devoted to the electrical exhibitors.

All the power required for the exhibition would be provided by electricity. Thousands of electric lights would be in use and electric launches and railways would be provided.

He said that a movement had been started for the holding of a great international electrical congress in Chicago during the exposition, and he suggested that the convention should use its efforts to promote the movement which should be undertaken by the various societies and be under the auspices of the United States government. A vote of thanks was passed to General Hornby for his address and the president appointed a World's fair committee.

SOME SPICY CURRENT TOPICS

Of Local and Neighborhood Interest.

Notes and Comments on Incidents Occurring Daily—Prepared for Readers Who are Hustled for Time.

WILL YOU GO?

A circular has been issued to the members of Toledo commandery, Knights Templar, to learn how many will attend the annual conclave at Cincinnati on the 23d. Every arrangement has been made for a grand time, and the attendance will undoubtedly be large. Headquarters of Toledo commandery will be at the Gibson house.

SECOND WARD DEMOCRATS.

The democrats of the Second ward will meet at Phœnix hall at 8 o'clock this evening for the purpose of organizing for the fall campaign.

The First, Fifth and Seventh wards are now being organized, and the boys of the Second do not propose to let any grass grow under their feet. A large attendance is desired.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

It may be news to the people of Toledo to learn that from the assessment sheets just prepared by Mr. Ernst Greiner, there are 564 electric lights utilized on the streets, 276 are furnished by the Toledo Electric company and 228 by the Western Electric Light & Power company. At $100 per light the cost aggregates $56,400. No gas lamps are used.

LOTS OF PIKE RUNNING.

Some people have an idea that the fishing season around Toledo is over, but they are mistaken; it has just commenced. Fishing in Ten Mile creek is now at its best, still, everybody don't know it. Pike are being pulled out in large quantities, weighing all the way from five to eight pounds. There will be good sport for about three weeks.

TO TALK ABOUT SHERMAN.

Mrs. S. E. V. Emery, of Lansing, Mich., will pay her respects to John Sherman to-night in a speech for the people's party from the band stand on Madison street. Mrs. Emery is the author of "Seven Financial Conspiracies," a book which has sold among the alliance to the extent of thousands of copies. Toledo people are cordially invited to hear her views of finances this evening.

THAT STONE ROAD AGAIN.

The county commissioners were in session again this morning, during which Commissioner Pray brought up the stone road matter, and deemed it proper that some action be taken on Prosecutor Barber's recent opinion. Messrs. Cook and Englehardt were not ready. "Better let it rest a few days," they said. Is it possible they are afraid of a settlement.

RECEPTION FOR PREACHER FISK.

The reception in the First Congregational church last night, given by the Y. P. S. C. E. to the new pastor, Rev. D. M. Fisk, formerly of Jackson, Mich., was a very pleasant affair. The attendance was not very large, but those present enjoyed the evening. Rev. Dr. Williams was kept busy introducing the members of the congregation to the new pastor. Mr. Howell, Miss Whiting and Miss Love rendered some very fine music. Ice cream and cake were served.

MISS BALDWIN WILL APPEAR.

Miss Genie Baldwin, of this city, who was with the Schubert quartet last season, will appear twice on the program at the opening reception of the Y. M. C. A. Juniors, Friday evening. There will also be a horn solo by Rush Farrar, a dialogue by Wesley J. Wuerfel and Vincent J. Emmick, jr.; and Harry Eagan, an essay. The living library by Arthur St. Clair Sloan, president of the Juniors; solo by Geo. W. Stevens, and remarks by President T. H. Walbridge of the association. The admission fee will be a book for the Juniors' library. After the entertainment refreshments will be served by the mothers of some of the boys and a social time will be enjoyed.

DEDICATION AT AIR LINE.

Yesterday afternoon the elegant new hall at the corner of Western avenue and Dale street, Air Line Junction, was dedicated to Pythian uses. The K. P. lodge located at the Junction has been in existence about four months, and the boys have shown a push which puts their city brethren in uncomfortable comparison. The membership has materially increased since instituted, and the crowning of their efforts for a home was realized yesterday. The exercises were impressive. In the evening a large crowd attended the dedication banquet and ball, which was much enjoyed. From the energy displayed in the past, it goes without saying that the future will be bright. The building has already been described in the BEE.

Lincoln Smith, G. H. Harrond, J. C. Albertson, H. E. Smith, M. E. Calkins and O. T. Comstock constituted the reception committee and they acquitted themselves with tact and grace.

O. S. Harding, J. O. Leroux, William Dawson and J. B. Reynolds had charge of the floor and they did themselves proud.

The music was furnished by Uhl Beas' orchestra and the caterer was H. W. White.

DEATH OF MISS GRACE PATTERSON.

Miss Grace Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Patterson, of Toledo, formerly of this city, died at their temporary apartments at the Sturges, this morning about 3 o'clock, after a severe and painful illness of four weeks. She was aged 19 years and, being of a kind and lovable disposition, had hosts of friends who will grieve to learn of her sad death. At school she was one of the brightest pupils, always standing among those at the head of her class and was a general favorite. She was of a weak constitution and nervous temperament and quite often was compelled to leave her studies for weeks at a time, and finally abandoned school altogether. It was not generally known that she was seriously ill and the news will be all the more a surprise to her many friends and acquaintances. Funeral from the First Presbyterian church Wednesday, September 9, at 3 p. m.—Mansfield News.

REDUCED RAILROAD RATES TO ST. LOUIS.

Account of meeting of the Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway will sell excursion tickets, September 19 and 20, to St. Louis, Mo., and return at one first-class fare, good to return until September 28, 1891.

MAJOR BUNDY'S REMAINS.

Paris, Sept. 10.—The body of Maj. J. M. Bundy, late editor of the New York Mail and Express, was embalmed last night and this morning was removed to the American church in the avenue de L'Alma, where a simple but impressive service was held.

FLYING MACHINES.

What Successful Navigation of the Air Would Do

To Knock Out McKinleyism—Infant Industries Will be No Longer Coddled by Tariff Laws in Those Days.

The secretary of the Smithsonian institution writes to the Century Magazine in a very hopeful strain regarding the possibility of aerial navigation in the near future, says the St. Louis Republic. He compares the supporting power of the air to a thin coating of ice on the surface of the ocean; such a coating, for instance, as might support the weight of a man passing swiftly over its surface, as in skating, but thick enough, otherwise, only to impede and drown him. If no one had ever learned to skate, and under such conditions it would not be easy to learn, the practicability of passing over the ocean would be a moot question. The secretary carries the simile far enough to conclude that, operating on this theory, it is only certain secondary, mechanical difficulties that have now to be surmounted, which will soon be conquered by the skill of our inventors and engineers, and that it seems to him possible, "even probable, that before the century closes we shall see this universal road of the all-embracing air, which recognizes none of man's boundaries, traveled in every direction."

One of the first and most striking results of the success of air navigation would be the complete abrogation of all tariffs on commerce. The McKinley bill would be as absolutely null and void as if it had never been passed, and the government would have to take prompt measures to raise the necessary revenue in other ways than through the customs. It would at once become impossible to prevent wholesale smuggling, and public opinion would not allow a tariff to be levied on some commodities coming by water, while others, via airships, could not be stopped from coming in free of duty. The coddling of "infant industries" would be forever thereafter impossible, at least by tariff laws. Even direct bounties would be of little effect. Manufacturers and sections of the country would have to stand or fall entirely on their merits—on their ability to compete with the whole world—and every citizen could and would obtain the best of everything at the command of his purse, without paying a royalty thereon to any plutocrat.

In the meantime, and until science thus puts a quietus on the tariff tinkers and their methods of legalized robbery, it is the duty of every lover of justice and friend of fair play to do his utmost to guide, to the best of his ability, the counsels of his country to the point where class tariff will be so contrary to every idea of public justice that it will need on successful aerial navigation to break them down.

It will not do to wait for the coming of the Genius of the Air, at whose nod the McKinleys and their ilk will fall back into the limbo of the chimeras where they belong. We owe it to ourselves and our children to stop at the earliest possible moment the upbuilding of one section of the country and one class of citizens at the expense of the rest. Legislation has been the force used to build up the iniquity and the removal of this legislation is within our power, whatever may be the result of mechanical inventions in the future. The flying machine might, and no doubt would, be an all-powerful weapon against tariffs, but we cannot afford to wait for it.

PIONEER SKETCHES.

(New Series.)

By Dr. H. Scott, of Lancaster, Ohio.

No. 59.

Miscellaneous.

I have before spoken of the squirrel without giving all the phases of their history. It has been a matter of surprise as to what has become of the grey squirrel. It does not seem probable that the war made upon them could have so reduced their numbers as to render them almost extinct. I repeat that it is my belief that there is not to-day one squirrel to be found anywhere in the woods for one hundred, sixty and seventy years ago; it may be not one for two or five hundred. There was a time in the early years of the century when the forests literally swarmed with them. From half a dozen to a dozen up the same tree could be seen every day. There was a time when any man could go into the woods in any direction, and within half a mile of the door of his own cabin shoot inside of a couple of hours a pouch full of them. At the present day, all over Ohio and Indiana, one might tramp the forests for days, possibly, without seeing a single squirrel. I believe that in the newer parts of Michigan, and perhaps in sections of Ohio and Indiana, they are still found to some extent; but no where approximating what they once were. There was a time when it was scarcely possible to save the corn fields from partial destruction by their ravages; now, such a thing as squirrel coming into a corn field and biting into the roasting ears is probably unknown; at least such has been the best information I have been able to obtain.

Because of their depredations on the ripening ears and because of their digging up the planted grains in the spring, thus requiring much of the ground to be replanted, the settlers of the early years instituted what were called squirrel hunts, in a general way, by which they were in certain sections somewhat reduced in numbers. On a named day every man and boy within a certain radius turned out, and from sun-up to sun-down hunted the squirrels. The territory was divided by a road, or a creek, and the hunters in equal numbers as to guns. The men did the shooting and the boys the driving and scalping. The hunt was for a wager, which was awarded to the party bringing in the greatest number of scalps—the scalp to have both ears attached. In this way vast numbers of them were slain. But they were exceedingly prolific, and within one or two years their numbers seemed as great as before.

In 1816 one of these general hunts was made in the Scioto valley, in Franklin county. Columbus was the rallying point, and the Scioto river the dividing line. The wager was a barrel of whisky and a supper. One party returned thirteen and the other fifteen thousand scalps, in round numbers. The district embraced in the hunt was about fifteen by ten miles in extent. But within two or three years thereafter the number of squirrels in the Scioto valley seemed as great as ever.

The most extraordinary fact in the history of the squirrel was that of its travels. About once in three or four years these travels occur, generally commencing in August and continuing until winter sets in. It consisted of a simultaneous movement of countless legions of these vermin across the base of the country, all in the same direction. On those occasions that I witnessed they seemed to come from the north and to move toward the south. They swam across rivers and ponds of water in clouds, and would come out at one's feet. They seemed to fear nothing, and would not turn out of their way though menaced by dogs and men. Boys stationed on the bank of a stream or a pond awaited their coming and slew thousands of them with clubs. If houses stood in their track they would fearlessly cross the yard or barnyard. If attacked by dogs or persons they escaped by flight, if they could, but never changed their direction. If they ran up a tree they descended as soon as the danger was past and continued their course.

When winter set in they were still on the move, and millions were left behind to perish of starvation. One would see the tails of dead squirrels hanging out of hollow trees, far up above the ground, all through the woods, and see them strewn on the ground. Where they came from in such vast numbers or whither they went could not be imagined.

HOW SHE TOOK CARE OF THEM.

When the train moved away from the station, Mabel pulled out her little red-bordered handkerchief and cried. There, in the car window, was Fay, her dearest friend, moving farther away from her each minute. For awhile she could see Fay's hand and handkerchief moving from the window, but when they had passed out of sight Mabel sobbed aloud. Right by her side stood Fay's mamma. She, too, stood watching the white signal till it was lost in the distance. Then she turned and held out her hand to Mabel.

"Come, Mabel," she said, in a voice that trembled somewhat, "let us go home."

As they walked away together, sympathetic eyes of the bystanders followed them. One soft-hearted baggageman shook his head sadly.

"Hard, isn't it?" he said.

The man standing next him nodded.

"And it seems only the other day they were married!" he answered. "How proud and happy they were! What was the trouble, do you know?"

"No," said the other, with a wrinkle of the eyebrows. "Some nonsense, I guess Ralph always was a quick-tempered fellow, and she was an only child, you know. I never thought they'd separate, though—and such a sweet little girl!"

His companion smiled a little.

"Did you notice the other one?" he asked. "That's Colburn's young one, Fay and she are as thick as peas. It'll be very lonesome for Mabel, now."

Mabel was already lonesome as she walked away from the station with Fay's mamma. When she looked, however, and saw the tears in Mrs. Fenwick's eyes she winked very hard to keep back her own tears. She did not know that the reason Fay had been sent away was that Mr. and Mrs. Fenwick had separated now, but she felt very sorry for the parents left behind and had promised Fay to take good care of them.

"I do not think my mamma is happy," Fay had confided to her, "for she cries a great deal. I am very sorry to go away just now, only Aunt Lottie wants me so much. And papa is not very well, I think. Sometimes he is cross, and things are all different from what they used to be. You must be good to them, Mabel, so they will not be too lonesome for me;" and she had promised that she would. Now she took Mrs. Fenwick's hand as she trudged along by her side.

"I will be your little girl till Fay comes back," she said. The sad face smiled a little as Mrs. Fenwick looked down at the child thoughtfully.

"Thank you, dear," she said.

Mabel's active little brain had already devised a plan.

"Every morning on my way to school I will stop and see you," she said, after a minute, "and—let me see—every afternoon when I don't have too many lessons, and when my teacher does not keep me after school, I will stop in the store to see papa."

"Papa!" cried Mrs. Fenwick.

She had hardly listened to the child, but started, for Mabel's papa, poor young Jack Colburn, had died some years ago.

Mabel laughed merrily.

"If I am your little girl," she said quickly, "then Fay's papa is mine."

Mrs. Fenwick flushed a little.

Mabel talked on without stopping.

"Sometimes we went into his store coming home from school," she continued, "and I know just where to find him—down in the little office at the end, sitting on a high stool, and the man outside always smiles at us just as pleasant and says:

"'Step right in, little ladies.'"

Mrs. Fenwick choked a little. How many times had she been in that little office herself—but now she would not go any more.

That evening she was all alone. No tired husband came home to tea, and Fay was far away with Aunt Lottie. Some of the neighbors thought of the lonesome little mother, but none ventured to intrude upon her in her sorrow.

In the morning Mabel came in as Mrs. Fenwick was eating her breakfast. This was an everyday occurrence when Fay was at home, for the two walked to school together.

"Good-morning," said Mabel, smiling.

"Good-morning," said Mrs. Fenwick. "Come here and kiss me."

The little girl did so and rubbed her own chubby cheek against Mrs. Fenwick's.

"I wish I could stay with you," she said, sadly, "but I daren't be late at school. It's very lonesome without Fay, isn't it?"

"Yes," answered Fay's mother, her eyes filling with tears.

Mabel walked around the room in silence.

"On my way back from school," she said, finally, "I'll go in and see Fay's papa."

"You are very thoughtful," observed Mrs. Fenwick.

Mabel laughed.

"I am taking care of you two till Fay comes back," she answered.

Then she picked up her lesson-books and kissed Mrs. Fenwick good-by.

"Take good care of yourself till I come back," she said.

Mrs. Fenwick stood at the window watching the little figure go down the street. She would turn around every minute and throw a kiss at the window, as Fay used to do.

School was very lonesome for Mabel. Usually Fay sat by her side, and at noon they ate their lunch together under one of the big trees in the school-yard. Some of the other children came up to Mabel now, but she turned away from them all with a little sigh. Had she not promised Fay that she would be true to her and take no other place? At noon she put her little lunch-basket on the desk before her and ate alone.

The afternoon seemed very long, but when school was dismissed at last Mabel was the first to leave the building. Up the street she ran, around the corner by the green lamp-post, and never stopped till she reached the hardware store, where Mr. Fenwick had his little office at the end. As she pulled back the heavy door and stepped inside one of the hardware men who had a black streak across his forehead smiled at her from over the counter and asked:

"What do you want, little girl?"

Mabel smiled, too, as she walked past him.

"I'm going to see Mr. Fenwick," she answered.

The man who had only recently come into the store tried to stop her. She only laughed in answer.

"Oh, he will see me," she said, and pushed open the office door.

Mr. Fenwick turned around at the sound. There he sat on the same high stool with his books open before him, but there were great rings under his brown eyes, and Mabel thought he looked tired. As his eyes fell on the intruder Fenwick started.

"Hello, Mabel," he said.

She walked up beside his high chair and looked up at him smiling.

"How do you do," she said cheerfully. "How are you getting along?"

Mr. Fenwick smiled.

"Who sent you here," he asked.

Mabel drew her little form up proudly. "Nobody sent me. I thought you might be lonesome without Fay."

"So I am," cried Fenwick, getting down from his stool and lifting the little girl in his arms. "So you came to keep me from being lonesome, did you."

"Yes," said Mabel, moving her soft hand over his dark hair. "I am to be your little girl while Fay is away. Do you think she will be gone long?

Mr. Fenwick hesitated. He did not care to tell Mabel that Fay would not come back till it had been legally decided which parent should have charge of her.

"It's very pleasant where she is," he said finally. "I shouldn't wonder if she didn't come back right away."

Mabel brushed away a tear.

"It's very hard on me," she said, "but I suppose it's hard, too, on you and—" She was going to say "on mamma," but thinking he might not understand, finished, "and on your wife."

"Yes, it is."

"We'll have to all keep each other form being lonesome," Mabel said, as Fenwick at last placed her on one of the stools by his side.

For some time the clerks in the hardware store cast frequent glances through the glass door at their employer in his office and the little girl at his side.

"It's Colburn's girl," said one of them; "she used to come in here with Fay Fenwick. I guess it makes Fenwick feel bad."

When Mabel came out of the office they all smiled at her. She spoke to Mr. Fenwick as she closed the glass door.

"I will try and come to-morrow," she said; "take good care of yourself."

"All right," answered Fenwick, smiling; "thank you."

He sat for some time after she left him with his head on his arm, so only the dark locks were seen through the door. The men outside felt very sorry for him.

"It's too bad," they said, "and they were so happy together."

When Mabel reached home she told her mamma what she had done. Mrs. Colburn kissed her and said:

"All right, darling."

She thought it could do no harm, and possibly the child might comfort them a little.

CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

A CHINESE DRUGGIST.

A Chinese druggist will freely display the most nauseous and disgusting substances as medicines; often he will keep a live deer there in a pen against the time when it will be pounded whole in a mortar, coram populo, to convince customers that his drugs are genuine. Medicines are gulped down by the quart, the prescriber holding that if one ingredient does not do its work another may. Their virtues, nevertheless, are many and mysterious.

A missionary doctor was well acquainted with a native practitioner, a man of considerable intelligence and repute. Him he brought to his home one day and showed, with natural pride, his three fair-haired little girls. The native hastened to compliment his foreign friend: "Their complexions are indeed beautiful, but, if I may say so, their hair is perhaps hardly dark enough." He produced a bottle. "A dose of this taken internally three times a day would make a wonderful improvement." He went on with more embarrassment: "There is another thing about them that I hardly like to mention." His friend reassured him. "Well, if you will allow me to say it, they are all girls. Now I have at home some pills that are perfectly infallible. Let them take these regularly for a month or so, and I promise they will develop into three as fine boys as father could wish for."—Temple Bar.
